Spring in Washington.
Also the Electric Chair.
Still Hoover and Smith.
Gambling and Crime.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8.

BEAUTIFUL weather, lovely flowers, wide streets nearly empty, Southern calm, nobody in a hurry. Such is Washington with Congress gone home, and all eyes turned toward Kansas City.

THE President leaves for the Wisconsin fishing grounds next week and has work on his mind. There will be 88 persons in his party, the largest working force ever assigned to the President.

SOME, mistaken, say this means that the President will be active politically. If that were true, one good secretary and one telephone would be enough equipment.

The President intends to keep up with his work as though he were in Washington, and will work every day except Sunday.

THE execution of three young men, sentenced to die tomorrow in Washington's new electric chair, is now postponed until June 22, that the President may have time to consider a petition for clemency.

THE three condemned, all young, convicted of killing a policeman, "showed no emotion when death was postponed." That absence of emotion made it easy for them to commit the murder.

WASHINGTON, capital of a nation, supposed to be civilized, should have abolished the death penalty, thus setting an example to the 48 states, instead of purchasing a new electric chair.

THE political situation, so far as the Republicans are concerned, is settled, except that a minority, evidently with its own good reasons, is trying, at the last minute, to defeat Herbert Hoover.

TODAY one Washington editor even tried to convince himself that General Pershing would step to the front, radiant in the glory of war, and take the nomination for himself.

Anything can happen, since the public does not see the hands that pull the strings. But, in Washington, as elsewhere, it looks more than ever like Smith and Hoover.

A SURVEY by the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice, partly financed by the Carnegie Foundation, says gambling, thoroughly organized for many years, plays a great part in Chicago crime problem.

GAMBLING is literally the worst of vices, most dangerous to those that practice it, and to the community on whom they prey.

Those that promoted a revival of Chicago race tracks are responsible, whether they know it or not, for much of Chicago's crime.

IT IS hard to escape the crime wave these days. In one case bandits kidnaped a doctor, ordered him to treat one of the wounded, then beat him cruelly and finally killed him.

Six active bandits in New York City rounded up four taxi drivers among their victims.

Taxicabs are associated with banditry in the public mind. The policeman "meaning it all for the best" shot down two of the innocent taxi men, killing one, knocked a third unconscious with his club.

IT MAY become necessary to do something about our crime wave. Senator Capper's interesting weekly, read by a million and a half prosperous farmers, says "France has more than 500,000 cafes, bars and cabarets."

The Kansas Senator, ardent prohibitionist, does not add as he might do, "The people in France or other foreigners have no crime wave and don't get drunk" except when they happen to be traveling Americans.

Whereas in this country we have more speakeasies than they have cafes in France, and the biggest crime wave the world ever saw.

KALININ, important in the Soviet government, says the American proposals "to abolish war" are nonsense.

Russia, biggest, most powerful nation in Europe, is dangerous, in her hatred of capitalistic government.

Kalinin's utterance should make our people appreciate the importance of being prepared for war, even while you plan to abolish it.

TWO young ladies failed to start trans-Atlantic flights. One was stopped by fog, the other by too heavy a load. If sensible, the young ladies will accept the double omen, stay on the ground, and leave ocean flying to men, whose business it is.

QUIZ NEAR END; SIX YET TO TESTIFY

Indictments against more than 200 persons are looked for late today or tomorrow in the Federal grand jury investigation to learn the identities of ringleaders in Pittsburgh's illicit liquor traffic.

When the 19 grand jurors took the noon recess only half a dozen witnesses remained to be called.

Meanwhile a battery of attorneys from the office of Federal District Attorney John D. Meyer, Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington and from the attorney general's office, Washington, was busily engaged drafting indictments.

Among those testifying today were several described as "star" witnesses held back until the wind-up of the sensational probe, which, according to rumors, will result in more than 200 persons being indicted.

1,200 QUESTIONED

Since the grand jury convened May 7 it has devoted 21 days, including many night sessions, to the so-called rum conspiracy probe, at which 1,200 witnesses have been heard. Their testimony is believed to have involved politicians and police officers with those actively engaged in various ramifications of the bootleg traffic.

All of yesterday and late last night attorneys from the offices of

Pacific Plane Near Goal

HONOLULU, June 8.—(AP.)—The monoplane Southern Cross was 480 miles from Brisbane, said a radio message received from it at 9:15 a. m. (Pacific Coast Time), today. The latitude given was 24.42 south; the longitude 181.38 east.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8.—(AP.)—Riding out the worst storms encountered in more than 6,000 miles of ocean flying, the monoplane Southern Cross today roared on along the 1,720-mile course from Suva, Fiji Islands, to Brisbane, Australia.

At 8 a. m. (Pacific Coast time) today the plane was 555 miles from Brisbane. A message from the plane at that hour gave its position as latitude 24.45 south and longitude 162.43 east.

Radio messages from the plane told of battling violent tropical disturbances that pulled and twisted and bounced the ship. One drop of "over 400 feet" was described.

But as on the first leg of the flight, when the ship was pulled downward by air currents between Oakland and the Hawaiian Islands, and was again caught in storms on the second lap to Suva, it straightened out and continued to roar on above the threatening waves.

STORMS BREAK

The plane started from Suva, Fiji Islands, yesterday afternoon with prospects of fair sailing ahead. There were 1,720 miles to cover before the four airmen, Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, Charles Ulm, Harry W. Lyon and James Warner, two Australians and two Americans, should see the calm waters of Brisbane harbor. They expected

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., June 8.—Harry K. Thaw is still confident that he will see the sights of Piccidilly and replenish his wardrobe in London.

"This is a delicate situation," he told reporters who interviewed him in his "millionaire's suite" aboard the liner Aquitania, where he is constantly guarded by a Cunard Line detective.

"However," he added, "with a careful handling, everything will be all right. I have no intention of altering my previous plans to spend three or four days in London. But, if it comes to the worst, I'm sure I'll be able to get a visa and go to France."

NO CHANGE IN POLICY

In London efforts in his behalf appeared to have come to naught, however, The Home Office gave no indication that its decision to ban

DOLORES DEL RIO

Dolores Del Rio, film actress, has been granted a full decree of divorce from Jaime Martinez Del Rio, writer, in Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, dispatches say. They were "incompatible," the suit said.

PADLOCKS PUT ON 26 OASES

Temporary "padlock" injunctions were granted in Federal Court this morning against 26 places, including saloons, hotels, cabarets, clubs, a grocery store and a "coffee house" in Pittsburgh and East Pittsburgh. Complaints were filed by Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington in which he charges the establishments are conducted as common nuisances in violating the prohibition law.

The Pittsburgh places named are in the North Side, East Liberty and Penn avenue districts. Each complaint is supported by affidavits by prohibition agents alleging purchases of moonshine whisky and other contraband liquors in the various places. Pending final hearings on September 10 the alleged proprietors and owners are enjoined from allowing further violations of the liquor laws on the premises.

The bills of complaints were presented before Judge F. P. Schoon-

Can Amelia And Mabel Cheat Ocean ?

FIGHT HALTS MABEL'S FLIGHT

Friendship Plane Held at Trepassey

HOW LONG?

How long has Amelia Earhart, who proposes to fly the Atlantic, to live as she prepares to take out over the ocean that has taken the lives of several other women?

NARROW ESCAPE

Ruth Elder, who was picked up by a steamship when her plane crashed into the Atlantic as it neared its European goal. Will Miss Earhart and Mabel Boll meet similar fates?

PILOTS PLANE

Wilmer Stultz, who is piloting Miss Earhart's plane, Friendship (shown in photograph at top), on the attempt to span the Atlantic. Louis Gordon also is making the trip as mechanic.

WHERE IS SHE?

Mrs. Frances Grayson, of whom nothing has been heard since she took off on European hop. Miss Earhart and Miss Boll face possibility of a similar mysterious fate on their daring flight.

TANK LEAK DELAYS HOP

International News Service.

TREPASSEY, N. F., June 8.—Although Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon were eager to start their flight to England today, it appeared likely that they would be somewhat delayed again by unfavorable weather and a slight leak in one of the fuel tanks of their tri-motored Fokker monoplane Friendship.

Strong northeast winds and rain were forecasted for today in this region. Reports of weather conditions over the Atlantic indicated that atmospheric depression near England was shifting from the steamer lanes which the Friendship will follow in its flight.

The leak in the fuel tank was discovered by the fliers late yesterday. They deprecated its seriousness and said it could be repaired in a short time.

All three adventurers were unperturbed by the failure of their plane to take off in three attempts yesterday. They appeared cheerful and their confidence remained unshaken.

A tiny leak was found in one of the pontoons of the plane yesterday morning. Some water had seeped in but this was removed and the hole in the pontoon calked.

FOG BAFFLES 'EM

PENNSYLVANIA

Pennsylvania fog definitely stopped the prospects of Lee Schoenhair and H. J. Tucker of setting a new trans-U. S. airplane record on their flight from San Diego to New York in a Wasp-motored Lockheed plane, capable of great speed. Around Harrisburg they turned and landed at Columbus, O. Lieuts. MacCready and Kelly in 1923 made the record.

ROW HALTS MABEL'S HOP

International News Service.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 8.—Another delay in Miss Mabel Boll's proposed trans-Atlantic flight in the monoplane Columbia loomed this morning as the result of a quarrel between Lieut. Henry B. Clark, in charge of Roosevelt Field, and Charles A. Levine, owner of the Columbia and sponsor of the flight. Miss Boll has announced that she intended to take off with her two companions in the trans-Atlantic plane this morning for Old Orchard, Me., or Newfoundland, on the first leg of her flight to Rome.

Because of Levine's failure to ask permission to use the Roosevelt Field runway for the take-off of the Columbia's six-hour flight yesterday when fog forced the fliers to return here, Lieut. Clark announced early today that he would not permit the plane to take off from the field this morning under any circumstances. He declared that if necessary he would "employ revolvers to keep intruders off the field."

CLARK RELENTS

Later, however, Lieut. Clark relented. He said that if Levine would ask permission to use the runway, he would not only allow the fliers to use it, but would also place all of his employes at the disposal of the fair Miss Boll and her pilots.

The "Queen of Diamonds," however, showed no inclination to start the flight this morning. At 5 o'clock she was asleep in a New York hotel, according to word received here.

Miss Boll changed her mind about the flight no less than three times after breaking into tears when the plane returned from Maine yesterday. At that time she declared the flight would be attempted again today. Later she said that she was too superstitious to start on a Friday. Shortly before midnight she announced that the flight was "on" again. Then she retired for the night.

NO. 3-CORNERED RACE

Miss Boll's companions on the flight will be Oliver C. Le Boutillier, pilot, and Arthur Argles, copilot and navigator.

It was said by a spokesman for Miss Boll that weather reports for today are unsatisfactory, but that the reports indicate conditions will be favorable by tomorrow.

Prospects of a three-cornered aerial race across the Atlantic between Miss Boll, Miss Amelia Earhart, now at Trepassey N. F., with the plane Friendship, and Miss Thea Rasche, German aviatrix, were further dimmed when Miss Rasche denied that she would begin her proposed flight to Berlin within the next few days.

"I've got to have 20 flying hours with that motor before I'd think of starting anywhere," she said.

DEATH NEAR?

Is death near, too, to Mabel Boll, styled "Queen of Diamonds," as she prepares to take off in Charles Levine's trans-Atlantic Columbia, single-motored, on a trip perhaps to Rome?

FLIERS RIDE OUT STORM

to cover the distance in about 19 or 20 hours, landing at Brisbane about 8:30 a. m., Australian time, 2:30 p. m. Pacific Coast time, today.

The flight went smoothly until nightfall enveloped the plane. Then came a message from Radioman Warner saying: "We are running into bad weather." It gave their position as being approximately 425 miles out from Suva, altitude 5,000 feet.

At 8:15 p. m., plane time, 12:15 a. m., Pacific Coast time, the ship gave its position as approximately 490 miles from Suva and remarked that the weather was "bad."

Radio operators along the coast added the information that the plane's signals were "swinging badly," indicating that the craft was riding roughly.

DANGER KEPT SECRET

Nothing was said about the tensity of the storm until the 9:25, plane time report, 1:25 a. m., Friday, Pacific Coast time.

Then Ulm said, "We didn't want to worry everyone whilst we were in it, but now we are out of it, we will tell you that for the past two hours we have battled the worst weather of the whole flight at 7,500 feet. Heavy rains, bumps, gave us several drops of over 4,000 feet at a time. A series of mean tricks on this one last stretch. Smithy and I are not through, but as soon as moon comes up and blind flying ends we will eat and have a shot of emergency whisky. Am too cold to write more. Will send later. Cheerio. We'll send later. Cheerio. We'll be o. k."

About that time a radio message was intercepted at Honolulu. It came from Sydney, Australia, and was broadcast for the fliers' information. The word was not cheering. It said the fliers "must expect one or two repetitions of the storm experienced at 7 p. m., with sharp squalls from southeast, rain during the next couple of hours before wind settles to steady southwest."

It was not long before the plane struck its next storm area. At 11:42, Plane time, a half hour or so after reporting that they were flying south of New Caledonia and about 770 miles from Suva, the fliers opened their wireless key probably to send their position report.

OUTRIDE STORM

Radio operators on shore heard the signal "Southern Cross" and then heard the plane's generator shriek wildly upward, the signals were rendered barely audible and then died out altogether. For a time it was feared that the plane might have plunged into the sea, for the increasing pitch of the generator indicated that the craft must have fallen rapidly.

A little later, however, came the reassuring word from land stations in San Francisco that the generator could be heard but that no messages were being sent. The Southern Cross was still rising, plunging and again rising through the storm and the worries of the intrepid fliers were not over.

Yet through all this came not a word of anxiety from t'e four men. They looked for the moon as they did during their flight from Oakland to Hawaii and Hawaii to Suva. Frequently they have referred to the moon as "our friend," and as frequently did they joke about the rough riding—always to close their messages with a light "cherrio."

the district attorney and prohibition administrator, with Norman J. Morrison, of Washington, a special assistant to the attorney general, were going through the mass of testimony given by the numerous witnesses and laying plans for drawing up bills of indictment.

At the three sessions of the grand jury yesterday were heard more than 100 witnesses, many of them officers of clubs in various parts of the city, who carried the books and records of their organizations into the jury room. Government officials here declare that the probe is the largest of its kind ever held by the Federal grand jury and that Washington is watching its progress with great interest.

POLICE GIVE RECORDS

Late yesterday afternoon City Solicitor Charles F. Waldschmidt and Assistant United States District Attorney Ralph H. Smith appeared before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in open court. Attorney Smith informed the court that the order issued Wednesday on police officials to produce police records was being compiled with. The government attorney said that certified copies of many cases from police magistrates' transcript dockets have been supplied; that others will be turned over today and that the City Solicitor is co-operating with the district attorney's office in supplying records desired for presentation before the grand jury.

Trans-U.S. Fliers Down

International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., June 8.—The attempted nonstop record flight of Lee Schoenhair and Harry Tucker from San Diego, Cal., to New York City ended here today, when the fliers were forced to bring their plane down when they were turned back by fog near Harrisburg, Pa.

The fliers set out from San Diego to break the record made by Lieuts. Kelley and McCready of 26 hours established in 1923. The plane, a Lockhead Vega, capable of a speed of 160 miles an hour, was called the Yankee Doodle. The plane had been in the air about 19 hours when forced to halt its flight.

The fliers told attaches at Norton Field they returned to Columbus when halted by fog near Harrisburg, as they were not aware of any other landing fields.

The ship took to the air yesterday at 1:05 p. m., Pacific Coast time, and landed at the Columbus Field at 9:45 a. m., Eastern standard time.

SUIT OVER THAW MONEY

NEW YORK, June 8.—(INS.)—While Harry K. Thaw was trying to break into London today, his brother, Josiah Thaw, was in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals seeking to retrieve $600,000 of the family fortune.

The money was a gift by Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw of Pittsburgh, mother of Harry and Josiah, to her grandson, Lawrence, son of a third son, Edward, now dead. Mrs. Thaw made the gift in January, 1925, when she was 82, and now, through Josiah, she is trying to get it back again.

According to counsel for Josiah and his mother, the latter did not realize what she was doing when she made over the money to Lawrence, who is 29.

Counsel in his argument quoted a nurse as having testified that when Lawrence arrived at the Pittsburgh home of his grandmother to receive the gift he found her unconscious from pneumonia, and said:

"Hang it, I wish the old lady would come too long enough to sign some papers."

Allegheny Country Club's annual horse show, attracting some of the finest thoroughbreds ever shown in Western Pennsylvania, is one of the most elaborate held anywhere in the United States. VETO KILLS SHOALS BILL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—President Coolidge apparently has killed the Muscle Shoals bill by a "pocket veto."

Midnight, the time limit of 10 days established by the constitution for the signing of bills passed by the Congress after adjournment, passed without any indication from the White House that the President intended to sign the measure. The bill provided for government operation of the $150,000,000 power plant on the Tennessee River in Alabama.

President Coolidge's failure to act by midnight kills the measure, by "pocket veto," according to the White House view of the meaning of the Constitutional provision which states that it is vetoed "unless Congress by their adjournment prevent its return."

CONGRESSMEN DISAGREE

Proponents of the measure, including Senator Norris, of Nebraska, contend, however, that Congress has not adjourned, within the meaning of the Constitution, but is merely recessing between the sessions. Under their construction of the clause, the President's failure to act within the Constitutional 10 days makes it a law, since, they hold, Congress has not adjourned.

President Coolidge's "pocket veto" will stand, however, until such time as the United States Supreme Court may have occasion to adjudicate the matter, as it is to be submitted to that body, it is learned.

HINT SUICIDE IN MAN'S DEATH

While efforts to identify the body of the man found shot to death at Stoops Ferry hill continue today, county detectives say that their investigation suggests that the death might have been a suicide. There were two bullets in the head but one was a minor one and if inflicted first would have permitted the man to fire a second shot. No revolver was found near the body, however. Twenty-eight dollars found in the clothing discredited a robbery theory.

SAN ANTONIO, June 8.—(AP.)—New directors for 32 of the 48 states—including Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia—represented in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, were appointed here yesterday, the other states reappointing their director.

New directors follow: The Mesdames. L. B. Christie, Phoenix, Ariz.; Virginia Speel, Washington, D. C.; Murray L. Stanley, Daytonia Beach, Fla.; A. P. Brantley, Blackshear, Ga.; D. H. Blethan, Blackfoot, Ida.; Walter W. Seymour, Chicago, Ill.; Frank J. Sheehan, Gary, Ind.; John Fox Lake, Shenandoah, Ia.; A. G. Reed, Baton Rouge, La.; John T. Sholfield, Portland, Me.; J. W. Avirett-Thomas, Cumberland, Md.; Arthur Devens Potter, Greenfield, Mass.; Alfred J. Knapp, Case City, Mich.; L. P. Haley, Okolona, Miss.; H. C. McCahan, Kirksville, Mo.; C. D. Wiggenhorn, Montana; W. E. Minier, Oakland, Neb.; C. C. Taylor, Carson City, Nev.; L. I. Taylor, Springer, N. M.; E. L. McKee, Silva, N. C.; William N. Harder, Marion, O.; J. A. Riehl, Blackwell, Okla.; G. J. Frankie, Portland, Ore.; John A. Frick Allentown, Pa.; Edward H. Whitney, Edgewood, R. I.; W. D. McGinnis, Rock Hill, S. C.; C. E. Marr, Provo, Utah; J. After sharp debate, but with only 25 votes in opposition, the Federation yesterday passed a resolution urging all members to attempt to introduce the study of the Bible into public school curriculums.

The resolution was introduced by the Tennessee delegation and urged the teaching of the Bible to combat the spread of atheism among children.

Mrs. Otto Hahn, of New York, and Mrs. Maggie Barry, of College Station, Tex., led the opposition. Mrs. Barry declared that "Study of the Bible should have its greatest impetus in the home," and that children should be thoroughly groonded in it before entering school.

The Tennessee delegation indicated that it wished to use the resolution in an attempt to modify the drastic evolution law of that state, which brought about the famous Scopes trial. Sponsors said it was written by a teacher of philosophy and did not mention evolution.

Denver seemed certain of the next biennial convention, as there was no other bidder, and Swampscott, Mass., appeared certain of entertaining the next biennial council, which meets next year.

Installation of Mrs. John F. Sippel of Baltimore, the new president of the Federation, and other officers, was the final business at last night's concluding session.

Many delegates will make a trip to Mexico City on a special train.

NEW TRANSFER TO MAKE EXPIRATION TIME CLEAR

The Pittsburgh Railways Company will place in effect next Friday, a new type transfer which will permit the holder to determine at a glance the time at which the transfer expires. The new type transfer will be installed on all West End routes. The transfer and fare zone limitations heretofore in effect will remain.

LOSS OF BOY'S LEG COSTS PENNSY $7,000

For the loss of a leg, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company agreed to pay Larence Mattis $7,000 and his mother, Agatha Mattis, $2,500, a consent verdict for those sums being taken in Common Pleas Court. The boy was knocked down by a train, which backed into him in April, 1926, near Twenty-fifth and Mary streets, South Side. Attorney D. L. McConaghy represented the mother.

NEW CALLS OF NOBILE HEARD

International News Service.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 8.—The sealer Hobby, now searching the ice-floes to the northward for traces of the missing dirigible Italia, was today endeavoring to pick up further messages which would confirm those received by the Citta Di Milano yesterday and believed to have been from Gen. Umberto Nobile.

The Hobby is equipped with an Italian naval wireless set having a short wave length. Some doubt is now felt as to whether the signals received by the Citta di Milano came from the Italia. They were not signed by Nobile, nor was anything else deciphered to definitely confirm that they came directly from him.

Lieut. Lutzow Holm has been unable to take-off in his seaplane on a second reconnoitering trip from the Hobby because of overhanging fogs. The ice-boat Braganza is now anchored outside Lomme Bay, hemmed in by ice-floes.

ITALY BELIEVES MESSAGES

ROME, June 8.—(INS.)—All Italy rejoiced today over the official communique issued by the Italia Relief Committee which stated that radio communcation between the missing dirigible and the Citta di Milano at King's Bay, Spitzbergen, had been re-established.

The relief committee announced that the supply ship had picked up faint, almost indecipherable messages from Gen. Umberto Nobile, which indicated the Italia had come down on Franz Joseph Land. Despite the faintness of the messages, the radio operator of the Citta di Milano believed they were authentic.

The signals were received at 11.07 last night. The operator was able to decipher only one word—"Franz"—which led to the belief that the Italia was down on Franz Joseph Land.

Pittsburgh As Others See Us

"Pittsburgh contributes men—strong huskies, physically, mentally and morally—and these men of iron . . . . are models that spur Young America to greater and greater achievement."

—WILLIAM C. COFFIN.

WILLIAM C. COFFIN, contracting engineer, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., September 7, 1862; educated at the Western University of Pittsburgh. Engineer for several Pittsburgh manufacturing concerns and has designed and built some of the largest blast furnaces and steel plants in the country. Resides Miami Beach, Fla., and New York.

WILLIAM C. COFFIN

Pittsburgh contributes men—strong huskies, physically, mentally and morally—and these men of iron * * * are models that spur Young America to greater and greater achievement.

Such men as W. H. Brown and his sons, that mined and shipped millions of tons of coal down the rivers even to the sea * * *

Carnegie, Schwab and others, that converted iron ore into shining steel that spans our rivers and forms the skeletons of our skyscrapers.

Wightman, Ford and MacBeth, that melted sands into glass through which the world looks out on nature and looks in on man's creations displayed in shop windows.

Brashear, that studied the stars through telescopes of his own making.

Heinz, that made "57" popular wherever figures are known.

Mellon, the master of finance.

* * * names of those who have made the city great are spiritual monuments that encourage them (young men and women) to be prepared to make it even greater and better, to increase its service to mankind.

GARAGE PROPRIETOR FREED IN ARSON CASE

William Orr, Jr., proprietor of an East street, North Side, garage, was acquitted of charges of felonious arson, conspiracy and attempt to defraud an insurance company by a jury in Criminal Court before Visiting Judge A. B. Smith yesterday. Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr alleged that Orr burned a barn on his farm on the Babcock boulevard in Pine township. Charles Snyder, farmhand on the estate of F. R. Babcock, nearby, testified he saw Orr piling paper and straw, and Fire Chief William Houck of Valencia said he found a box of hot coals and straw in the cellar of the farm house. W. W. Kelley, Orr's brother-in-law, was acquitted of conspiracy on binding instructions.

Farmers Too Busy For Politics, Will Finds

CHICAGO, Ill., June 8.—Had a fine trip in from California on the air mail. Arrived in Chicago 24 hours after leaving old Beverly.

Iowa and Nebraska are just planting corn.

What the farmer needs is for a convention to be held some time when he is not so busy.

All the politicians are trying to stop Hoover, and all the people are for him, so lay your bets.

WILL ROGERS.

They blew up a Russian cafe in Hollywood and like to got all the movie stars that had been educated up to caviar.. I would like to have seen Charlie's exit when he found it wasn't a movie blast.

MARATHON CHAMPIONS, IT SEEMS, LIKE TO DANCE

NOW THEY GET READY FOR ANOTHER SHUFFLE

Marathon dancing champions—that is, collectively—like to dance. That is fact and proved here by Teeny Neiman and Tony Phillips (left) and Albert Bonach and Cora Dean (right), who sign papers here for Henry Townsend, Jr., saying they'll dance in his marathon dance at Duquesne Garden pretty soon. They and one other couple lasted out the full length of the recent Motor Square marathon.

MACKRELL GETS LAW DEGREE

Culminating three years of study amid the manifold duties of office, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell will be graduated from the University of Pittsburgh Law School, next Wednesday. At 47, he has the distinction of being the oldest student to receive a diploma from that school.

Eager to round out a career that began with newspaper reporting and has included varied posts in political and fraternal organizations, Mackrell entered the law school in September, 1925, and, according to Dean A. M. Thompson, set an example worthy to be followed by younger men.

With his graduation, only the state board examinations stand between him and realization of a life's ambition—admission to the Allegheny county bar.

DOCTOR VICTIM OF PAINT

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP.)—The New York Times says today that Dr. S. A. Von Soshocky, inventor of the radium paint which is said to have doomed five New Jersey women to a slow death, is a victim of his own invention.

Although the doctor was reticent to talk about himself, marks of the inroads of illness were plainly evident. His front teeth were gone and his fingers up to the second knuckle are black, the result of radium necrosis.

A count of white corpuscles of his blood taken within the last two months disclosed only 4,000 to the cubic millimeter, while a normal persons has 7,500 to 10,000, an effect produced by radium poisoning among other things.

The radium first took effect on Dr. Von Soshocky in 1920, and only because of his ability to keep an accurate scientific check on himself has he been able to withstand the disease. Several times he has been forced to go to higher altitudes to recuperate.

The doctor frequently has risked his life in recent years to treat friends with radium.

Dr. Von Soshocky several years ago became an official of the United States Radium Corporation, in whose plant the five New Jersey women are said to have acquired the radium poison. They recently made a settlement with the company for $10,000 each, a lifetime annuity of $600 each, and insurance for their relatives when they die.

RAT, CAT MEET IN CHURCH, PALS

It was said many centuries ago, in the cause of peace, that the wolf and the lamb should lie down together. And now, in a Christian church, the cat and the rat have made their peace.

Chased

Into a six-foot light shaft of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Center and Liberty avenues, the rat was chased by cat. Theodore Dawson, the sexton, first saw them yesterday afternoon. What he saw was the rat curled up in sleep against the soft fur of the traditional enemy. He saw them playfully engaged in their prison, neither able to escape.

Today Dawson split the union by dropping a ladder into the shaft. The cat hopped to the surface—and away. The rat met the inevitable fate.

Why Fay King Envies Girls Who Wear "Lines"

By FAY KING

HOW often I have envied the tall, slim, calm, graceful type of woman who can wear lines.

I have tried to wear lines—you know what I mean—those clothes that must be worn just so and with as little motion as possible, or you will spoil the line!

I had such a gown once, gorgeous and a bargain—or I wouldn't have had it—it's the "line" you pay for!

For five minutes in front of my mirror I was one of those gorgeous creatures!

But a little later when I forgot to pose the line—a beautiful panel that hung down the back and should have had a clinging effect—it was flying around in every direction but the one it should have been in!

That is fatal with a line.

The line, to be effective, must be where it should be, and if you are going to gallop around like a polo pony, the line is sure to be flying around like a Dutch windmill when it should be clinging like ivy!

So, as I say, unless you can live up to marcel wave you had better stick to a windblown bob!

Lines are out of my life because I cannot live up to them!

NORTH SIDERS BACK BONDS

The North Side Chamber of Commerce added its approval to the peoples' bond issue of $43,680,000 at a meeting last night in old city hall, North Side. W. S. Diggs and J. G. Shaw outlined the projects of the issue and pointed out the importance of high speed boulevards, modern roads and bridges in the progress and development of the city and county. The importance of a town hall and airport to keep pace with other cities also was stressed.

A Republican organization was formed in Robinson township last night following a meeting at which four speakers explained the proposed bond issue. James T. Fox and Henry Tranter of the Peoples' Bond Issue Association of Allegheny County told of the benefits that the issue would bring to outlying districts. State Representative Joseph G. Steele and Attorney Michael A. Musmanno also spoke. Several other slubs and civic organizations indorsed the issue at meetings yesterday.

TEN HERBS JUST WHAT SHE NEEDED

Wilkinsburg Lady Says It Improved Digestion, Blood and Nerves; Increased Strength.

"Ten Herbs was just what I needed, as it seems to have cleansed, purified and invigorated my entire system, and thus gave Nature a chance to create better digestion, improve the blood, restore restful sleep, and give real nerve vigor and bodily strength," was the statement of Miss Rose Newland, 1025 Ross Avenue, Wilkinsburg, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine.

"Following a street car accident, about four years ago, my system became in a very weakened, rundown condition," Miss Newland continued. "I was just about a nervous wreck. I finally had to spend four months in a hospital and got so bad that I was told that I had only a short time to live. Food did not digest properly, and my bowels were irregular. Any little noise bothered me, and I could not sleep at night. I was so weak I could not walk a block without getting out of breath. There were rheumatic pains in my shoulders, and my whole system seemed poisoned and clogged up.

"I read about Ten Herbs in the papers, and saw that it contained roots, herbs and barks. I started using your medicine, and it is doing all that you claimed for it. I have a better appetite, and food gives me more nourishment. My bowels are regular, and my nerves are quiet. The rheumatic pains have left my shoulders. I have gained so much in strength that I can spend the day shopping and come home without feeling exhausted. I can honestly say that Ten Herbs has given me a different future to look forward to. I gladly add my name to the already long list of persons who have publicly endorsed your medicine."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

The Main Factory of The Richman Brothers Co., in Cleveland

DIRECT FROM OUR FACTORY TO YOU

RICHMAN'S CLOTHES ALL $22.50

The Greatest Money's Worth You Ever Found in a Suit of Clothes

Richman's Clothes are not only beautifully styled and luxuriously rich in appearance, but their hidden qualities give them added value—longer than usual life.

We not only buy the finest pure wool fabrics our huge cash buying capacity commands, but we subject every yard to the most rigid tests for strength of texture, surface wearing qualities, and fast dyes. Each yard is so thoroughly shrunk that shrinkage after making is utterly impossible.

Any fabric you choose in a Richman suit is guaranteed to give you satisfying wear.

The finest materials we can procure are used to build the inner construction upon which lasting style and shape depend—and thousands of stitches and cross stitches secure each part of the coat front and its shape retaining stays.

You may depend upon your Richman suit to keep its style and shape as long as you care to wear it.

Never before in all our half century's experience has it been possible to produce so much quality at such a price.

The world's largest direct-from-factory sales volume—practically unlimited cash resources—the finest manufacturing facilities—the watchful care and efficiency of employes who own a $6,000,000.00 share of this business—all contribute to the quality and value you get in Richman's Clothes at $22.50.

And remember, please, that our price, $22.50, gives you unrestricted choice of the thousands of suits, topcoats, sport suits, and tuxedo suits offered for your selection in any Richman store—any style, any fabric, any size—nothing is reserved to sell at a higher price—you pay nothing for any alterations desired.

Film Stars Adopt Children; Polly Moran Educating "Son" And Lew Cody Gets New Boy

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1928 Premier Syndicate.)

LOS ANGELES, June 8.

ENLARGING the family via adoption seems to be quite a commendable film attribute these days.

There's Polly Moran, for example. Polly is known far and wide as a grand hey-hever. She lives alone, except when her adopted son is home from the military academy Mama Polly is putting him through.

Lew Cody is another who has just adopted a boy. Whilst playing voodvil in Kansas City, a harum-scarum kid named Cordell Fray came back stage to see him. Hundreds did the same thing. Cordell, who is about 15, said to Cody in bidding him goodbye:

"Maybe I'll come out and see you some day."

"Sure," Lew nodded. "That'll be fine."

Cody finished his tour and returned to Hollywood. He started a picture. Arriving home from the studio one evening, his wife, Mabel Normand, greeted him with:

"You've got a visitor."

"Huh? Where?"

"In there," Mabel nodded toward the bedroom.

Cody took this gingerly. He opened the door. There on the bed, fast asleep and dustier than the dusty answer, lay Cordell Fray! Lew is absolutely crazy about the kid. He's putting him through business school and later will appoint him his secretary. Cody reciprocates the boy's idolatry of him by trying to live up to it. If anybody dares cuss or even sample a drink when the youngster is around Lew bawls the daylights out of the transgressor.

Speaking of Polly Moran, she has lost 16 pounds. Miss Moran recently was stricken ill and departed forthwith to the hospital. 'Twis there she left the 16 pounds—but her sense of humor is still untouched.

Tim McCoy, the western hero, is sporting a white adhesive patch over his right eye. "How come?" I queried.

"A woman socked me," Tim deplored.

"You don't say!"

"Sure. I was playing 'Doug' (a species of tennis) at Jack Holt's yesterday. My partner was a girl. We both settled down to sock the same ball, but her racket connected with my eye instead. Gosh, I went out for the count."

Tim had one stitch taken in the injury. He and Jack Holt, by the by, are expert "Doug" addicts. Doug. Fairbanks, I believe was the first to introduce the sport out here. The idea of the game is never to let the ball hit the ground. 'Tis played on an ordinary tennis court, only the net is as high as one's shoulder. Darn fast game, this.

Clara Bow is prepared to renounce her faith in week end trips. One must be at least a pseudo-sophist to appreciate such a sacrifice—Week end before last, Clara sought peace—if not quiet—at Palm Springs. Neglecting to wire ahead for reservations, all she could get was a dinky room in a ditto hostelry that catered to left-over transients. Week-end fiasco No. 1.

Last week-end, Clara decided to go to Noah Beery's trout farm, about 80 miles away. She motored up with the Hal Hurleys and Al Wilkie, Paramount publicists. Mr. Beery's manager gave Clara a cabin near the center dancing structure. That night, the multitude of guests felt like tripping the noisy fantastic. They did. Clara retired at a sane hour. Insane hours ticked away while she tossed to the staccatto joy and music of the funmakers.

Clara is of the opinion, now, that peace and quiet is a hallucination of a brain paid to hallucinate. My suggestion, however, would be for her to put up a pup tent in the middle of a Kansas plain. There she would perish from peace and quiet, and that's no exaggeration.

HERE AND THERE -:- WITH FOLK WE SEE -:- IN PHOTOPLAYS

Alice White might tell all girls how to become movie actresses. She might say first get a job in the studio office, as she did.

Clara Bow's punch is not all in her acting, yet one imagines the bag would prefer her punch to that of Jack Dempsey. Girls who would be slim must exercise.

Charlie Murray and Gustav Von Seffertitz. Unless that cigar lighter works pretty soon Gustav likely will get a match instead of using one of those lightning bolts. Or he may decide to quit smoking.

MARATHON DANCERS TO GO ON RIVER BOAT

Features of the excursions of Japanese Garden, the new amusement boat operating from the foot of Wood street, are the ballroom and an orchestra of girls. Saturday night's excursion will be slightly shorter than usual, because the boat must be in readiness at 11:30 p. m. to receive marathon dancers who will remain on the river boat throughout Sunday, returning to shore Sunday midnight. The public will have access to the boat during the marathon.

PATHOS FACTOR IN PLAYS

The trials and heartaches of a young couple who find it necessary to sit down every Saturday evening and figure just how far the weekly income will go are the backbone of "Saaturday's Children," announced for presentation by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week with Anne Forrest and Ralph Morgan heading the company.

"Little Old New York," which the Nixon Players will present in the Nixon next week, is a mingling of pathos and laughter. It has a love story entwined with comedy and it isn't until the final curtain that an audience can be certain it is all going to end the way they want to have it.

The giant redwood trees of northern California form the outdoor setting for the picture, "Don't Marry," coming to the Davis next week. The stage feature will be a tabloid revue, "Mixed Pickles."

INDICT "MISS MOBILE" IN APARTMENT FIRE

MEDIA, Pa., June 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Vivian McDowell Page, of New York, who was "Miss Mobile" in the 1926 Atlantic City beauty pageant, was indicted for arson yesterday by the Delaware county grand jury. Frank Morganthral, a chauffeur, arrested here after a fire in the Norma apartments here a month ago, also was indicted for arson. He is alleged to have driven Mrs. Page from the apartments the night of the fire. Mrs. Page also is charged with larceny of $180 from William McClay. The grand jury has not yet acted on this charge.

MT. LEBANON PUTS OFF PAGEANT TILL MONDAY

The historical pageant which was to have been presented last night and tonight by pupils of the Mt. Lebanon schools has been postponed until Monday and Tuesday nights. A shower and the damp grounds caused school officials to delay the festival. The entire program with 1,300 school children in the cast, will be given as originally scheduled.

Good News For Girls

And Women With Complexion Worries

One Week's Use of Plain Old-Fashioned Buttermilk Makes Amazing Improvement.

It's a strange thon that now after years of being almost forgotten the simple old-fashioned recipe of buttermilk for beautifying the skin is again being turned to by the clever modern woman.

But it is easy to understand when you see the almost unbelievable improvement the use of buttermilk will make in your own skin and the short time it takes to smooth out little harsh wrinkles, reduce enlarged pores and give your complexion a lustrous, youthful firm look.

For convenience sake, Science has perfected a way of combining fresh concentrated buttermilk with a perfect cream which you can now get at May's Drug Stores, or any drug store, under the name of Howard's Buttermilk Cream. Just one application of Howard's Buttermilk Cream will make your skin look better than it has for months—or your money will be refunded.

The Rev. Mr. Howell and Bishop Alexander Mann of Pittsburgh will make addresses of welcome at the dinner, and the principal address will be made by the Rev. Dr. Warren D. Rogers, bishop coadjutor of Ohio. The Rev. William H. Milton of the National Commission also will speak.

Sessions will be held during the morning, afternoon and evening tomorrow and on Sunday there will be meetings throughout the day.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

PHILOSOPHY, IN CHORUS GIRL'S CLOTHING

TALKING is an accomplishment in a man—an affliction in a woman.

Sweet are the memories of the day when courting a girl was not a financial problem, love wasn't a wrestling match, and getting a man to the altar was not a matter of sheer brute force.

In a sentimental moment an Englishman will tramp out into the country, gather a bunch of wild flowers and bring them to a woman with his own hands—an American will go down and pawn his watch and send her orchids.

HELEN ROWLAND

A man with a single-track mind is not hard to find; it's one with a single-track heart that most women are vainly looking for.

Now that the spring moving and cleaning are over, a man can go home as late as he pleases without the fear of being assassinated by a murderous hearted sofa or felled to earth by a curtain-rod.

Marriage is the point at which a man stops calling a woman "Darling" and begins calling her "Say."

To a man, marriage means giving up four out of five of the chiffonier drawers and all the hooks in the closet; to a woman, it means giving out four out of five of her wishes and all of her opinions.

You can make a man believe that you are reserved, prudish, cautious, cold or a flat-tire—but never that the reason why you don't want to kiss him is just because you don't WANT to kiss him!

Lengthening the bathing suit would do a lot more to improve many a woman's beauty than lifting the face.

Satire is philosophy in chorus-girl's clothing.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

I WAS too spent with my storm of sobbing to dispute Lillian's assertion that I had discovered my love for Dicky to be exceedingly live embers instead of dead ashes. And indeed I knew that if I spoke the truth I could not contradict her. But she gave me no chance to answer her even if I had wished to do so, going on with her slow monotonous monologue as if she were speaking to herself.

"There's just one thing I want you to clamp down into your bean so hard it can't be pried out with a stump puller," she said. "That's the fact that Dicky is still 20 varieties of filberts over you. I'll admit he has a darned peculiar way of showing his affection, and that he's due for a lot more grooming before you put your neck into double harness again. Yes, I know"—as I involuntarily shivered—"you're not yet ready for the forgive and forget stunt, and I don't want you to be for quite a spell yet. The Dicky-bird needs to be kept waiting outside the cage door for awhile, it will reduce that exaggerated ego of his. But don't you forget that he loves you, loves you dearly. Now take that thought with you into a good snooze, for that's what you need more than anything else in the world. Go to sleep. Go to sleep. Go to sleep."

"The fool-killer ought to have me," she said. "I sure am his meat today. I meant to take the receivers off the hooks of both telephone and extension and forgot it. Lie back there. It probably isn't for you, anyway."

But she was wrong.

"Yah, Meester Veritzen, Meesis Graham she here. I call her right away."

"If it's anything important I'll call you," she said, and with thankful obedience I lay down again. For in my present mood Philip Veritzen was the last person in the world to whom I wished to talk.

"'Lo, Phil" I heard Lillian's cheerful voice at the telephone. "Is your message anything I possibly can deliver? Madge has a frightful nervous headache this afternoon, and I've just got her off to sleep. Yes, I knew you wouldn't want me to disturb her."

There was a long pause followed by her quick assurance, "Yes, I'll tell her," then a longer pause which my friend ended with an explosive explanation.

"For looping the loop with Lindy, Phil, what is your yen about that Lincoln damsel? Oh! you don't need to get huffy with me, old-timer. It won't do you a bit of good. I have a regular rhinoceros hide. Of course, I'll tell Madge what you say, but you know that she or anyone else might just as well try to keep a tiger from his kill as an artist from accepting a heaven-sent model for a particular drawing. And why in the name of the two-lettered Egyptian god it's any of your affair, I can't see. I'll just anticipate your obvious retort, old darling. I know any part of this is none of mine. But I'll promise faithfully to deliver every syllable of your message. Good afternoon, and don't forget you're the host on Saturday."

She came back to the veranda laughing.

"Phil has been called to the city," she reported. "He's going on the night train, but can't get over here before he goes. He wanted to assure you that he would be back in time for the beach picnic Saturday. As for his other fool messages, I'll give you three guesses."

SPACES OF FASHION

Time Changes All Things Even Space!

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

HOW often do you sigh, "Oh, for the good old days!" But do you ever stop to think what would happen if the styles and fashions of other days were still in vogue? Think of getting into an automobile in a hoop-skirt! Or of trying to buck the crowds in the rush hours on the crowded trains and trolleys! Can you picture a Ruth Elder in ruffles and hoops and powdered curls?

The steady tread of Time changes all things, and he it is who acts as the pacemaker in the eternal race.

As once were there great open spaces where now stand crowded cities and towering skyscrapers, so were there wide flowing, lovely fashions. But now—five lovely moderns can stand in the space which was once allotted to one. And there's just as much grace in their movements as there was in the dainty miss of the crinoline and hoop-kirt days.

And so it goes! Changing times bring changing styles! And each has its charm! For, after all, beauty is a thing of the moment—what's lovely today is laughed at tomorrow, and only the beauty of soul and spirit is lasting.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Do You Nod Over Work? Find the Reason

IT is a good thing to be sleepy at the right time, but it is embarrassing to be sleepy at a time of day when you should be wide awake. It looks ridiculous if you nod your head in your chair and nearly break your neck when you actually drop into slumber. I saw a senator sound asleep at his desk the other day. He appeared very sheepish when he woke up and realized what had happened.

DR. COPELAND

Why do people get sleepy when they ought to stay awake?

Scientists argue a lot over what causes sleep. Some hold to the idea that it is due to lessened blood in the brain. Others think it may be due to the effect of some agent generated in the body and capable of narcotic effect on the brain and nervous system.

There can be no doubt that the circulation of the blood is related to the production of sleep. Strong coffee or other stimulant in the right amount will send the heart to pumping. This causes the blood to go bounding on its way to the brain. Then the desire for sleep disappears.

You have a big dinner in delightful company and then go home to read or write. To your despair you find the words running together and the stuff you are trying to write is a stupid mess. The blood is busy digesting the food and your poor brain is in a muddle. There is nothing left but to go to bed and submit to your sleepy impulses.

Because you are sleepy doesn't mean always you are tired. You may nod and doze just because your system is clogged with an enormous meal. If you would only wake up you could do a day's work and be really interesting.

When you have mental work to do or want your mind to be alert and ready, starve yourself a bit. Take your big meals when you have time to digest them without interfering with your mental machinery.

To stay in a temperature at body heat is enervating and sleep producing. We need the gusts of cool air which strike the body like a gently applied whip lash. This keeps us fresh and wide awake.

Uniformity of temperature is deadly to mental activity. Opening the window means more than getting fresh air. It seems that your body is stimulated by the change of temperature. You are refreshed by the effect upon your circulation.

By moving about, you stir into being some gentle air currents which excite your blood flow, and pretty soon you are wide awake and ready for useful service. Don't permit yourself to grow stupid and fat by giving in to your sleepy mood. Grow strong and healthy and vigorous by avoiding the manner of life which makes you nod at your work.

Answers to Health Queries

E. Q.—What causes the kidney elimination to have a strong odor?

A.—Have a urinalysis made to determine the cause. Many conditions would have such a symptom.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, June 9

GENERALLY lively and stirring conditions may dominate on this day, according to the stimulus of Mercury and Uranus favorably aspected by the luminaries. Nevertheless, there is need for caution as to management of the finances. It is probable that stubborn obstacles or postponements may arise, with other trials and vexations, personal and in business. But new ventures and ideas, especially those of an unusual or advanced nature, may find encouragement for the future.

Those whose birthday it is may expect an eventful and stirring year, with many ideas and enterprises receiving encouragement. There are also stubborn obstacles to surmount, and the finances should not be subject to hazard. Personal affairs may likewise lack in harmony or success.

A child born on this day will be skillful, clever versatile and adventurous, but may encounter many obstacles to be surmounted. It may not have perfectly harmonious and happy personal relations.

It may be some of the gods are good and some evil but all in action weak.—BUDDHA.

How I Bleach My Skin White

"The camera is a merciless eye," says Miss Genevieve Barr, noted New York model, "and we girls who have to face it have a method of our own for keeping our skins white and flawless.

"We buy no ready-made preparations, but get three ounces of Orchard White at the drug store and add to this the juice of two lemons. This makes several weeks' supply of a very fine skin bleach which softens, refines and whitens the skin without any harm or irritation. And because you use it while it is still fresh, it is twice as effective as any ready-to-use preparation. I find it a dandy bleach for tan and freckles, too. Every girl who takes up posing in New York sooner or later learns this studio secret. The bleach costs only a few cents to make."

Care of Blankets

Blankets should be given an airing in the garden occasionally on a sunny day. If they are kept clean and fresh in a dry cupboard with a lump of camphor or a few moth balls, the moth is not likely to trouble them. It is rare that moths attack blankets; they do not like the smell of them, but, to be on the safe side, stored blankets should be now and again overhauled.

KIWANIS PRESIDENT

Princess Kamaile Kema, Hawaiian, with the lei, token of friendship, crowned William C. Zeigler, president Pittsburgh Kiwanis Club, at the weekly luncheon, Ft. Pitt Hotel. Beside the Princess, the musicians are Halemanu Halemamu, Kale Pie and Malia Makua (right), appearing at Donahoe's, Fifth avenue.

LOVE AND NEWS FILM FEATURES

A romance of Ireland, by an Irish novelist, Donn Byrne, will be the principal feature on the program of the Grand Theater next week. "Hangman's House," starring Victor McLaglen, with June Collyer in the feminine lead, will head the gala program. In it, "The Making of a Newspaper," a two-reel film, showing most interestingly the production of a daily, will have a part.

"Hangman's House" is a love story, the author's favorite work. It envolves from the love of Connaught O'Brien for Dermott McDermott, trails through the tracks, favorite Irish sport, and shows real shots ofthe annual Glenmalure Steeplechase in Ireland.

Additional features on the program will be a stage show, reflecting a continuance of the new policy inaugurated for this Fifth avenue theater. Another feature will be an Our Gang comedy.

The two-reel movie of newspaper-making, which occupied the attention of Hearst and International News Reel men for several years, shows the fascination of getting news—real news—into print. International News Reel made the picture.

How One Woman Ended Eczema

Severe Case All Over Her Body, But Now She Is Better

Here is just another case of how Peterson's Ointment conquers the terrible itching of eczema after other treatments had failed.

The same kind of a story comes from all over the country. After others fail Peterson's Ointment succeeds.

This letter from Charlotte Brandeau, of Swansea, Mass., is worth reading: "I used Peterson's Ointment and soap for a very severe case of eczema. It was all over my body. I have tried many things to cure it, but not one of them gave me a cure. I saw the ad of Peterson's Ointment in the Fall River Herald and now I am better. I do not go without your ointment and soap in the house, and recommend it very much."

Get a box of Peterson's Ointment at any drug store in America for 35 cents—it won't disappoint you.

STOLEN INDIANAPOLIS JEWELS SOUGHT HERE

In the belief that stolen jewels valued at $60,000 might have been placed in pawn in Pittsburgh, city detectives today are communicating with pawn shop operators throughout the city. The jewels were obtained in the Memorial Day holdup of the Broadmoor Country Club dinner-dance near Indianapolis. Police of the Indiana capital said they thought some of the holdup men came here.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Spring Finery, Slickers and Topcoats Mingle as Society Turns Out for Sewickley Horse Show

AS THE sun slowly emerged yesterday afternoon the whole aspect of the grand stand at the opening day of the annual Allegheny Country Club horse show became brighter. Slickers and heavy top coats that protected the intrepid sportsmen and sportswomen, too, from the discouraging drizzle of the early afternoon quickly disappeared, and by the time those going later to the costume party given by William Christopher Robinson at his home, "Woodmont," Sewickley Heights, were ready to ride or drive about the ring before their departure for the Robinson dinner and dance, the show grounds had assumed a gala aspect.

As the sun sent the dark clouds skidding away, more and more society folks arrived to see the show, and the riding and driving party, too, as well. When the fantastically-garbed guests appeared in the ring, at the close of the day, the boxes were quite well filled.

Since the chief interest of the day was equine, it was fitting that the Robinson guests should represent folks whose means of transportation was horses. So there were 12 characters from the prologue to Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," and sheiks from the desert, and men and women in the costume of our grandparents, driving in buggies and coaches once deemed very smart.

Pretty Mary Oliver was most charming as the young squire from Chaucer's poem. And Eleanor McCargo was demure in the garb of the famous prioress who had such exquisite table manners, you remember. A. L. Robinson was surely a jolly looking Friar Tuck, didn't you think?

But the folks sitting in the boxes I want to talk about, too. Usually at the horse show one sees many smart summer costumes. Of course it was too cold yesterday for any but some of the bravest members of the younger set to appear in the smart silk sport frocks always in vogue during the warm weather months. Tweeds were much in evidence, and a few who wore fur coats found them very comfortable indeed.

Among those whom I saw later in the afternoon chatting with friends in the boxes were Mrs. Henry R. Rea and Mrs. Maitland Alexander, the Richard Beatty Mellons, and Mrs. J. Frederick Byers.

The Henry R. Hilliards spent much of the afternoon in a box. Others who I noticed in the boxes were Mrs. Walter Mitchell, Mrs. Herman G. Scott, Mrs. Thomas M. Johnes III, Mrs. James H. Childs, Mrs. Leonard Woods, Mrs. Thomas Jones Hilliard, and Mrs. George Phelps Rose.

Mrs. George A. Benney was at the show too, with Helen Benney. And I noticed Mrs. Morgan B. Schiller was much interested in the various classes.

Mrs. A. Rex Flinn, in a riding costume, I noticed resting a bit in her car, parked by the ringside. Mrs. Dorwin J. Donnelly watched the show from her car, too. She and Mrs. Herbert Parker I saw talking over the different entries. Mrs. Parker wore a smart deep rich blue tailored suit and a close fitting felt hat of the same shade, and even the flowers in her lapel were blue. Mrs. Donnelly was in tan—a tan tweed coat with a shoulder cape and a tan dress and felt hat to match.

Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker looked very striking as she entered the grandstand. She wore a green kasha coat, a green frock and a large green straw hat. Mrs. Harry Darlington was at the show, not a bit daunted by the weather.

Late in the afternoon I saw Mrs. John H. Hillman, Jr., and Mrs. George W. J. Bissell, and Mrs. A. Marshall Bell.

Mrs. Simon Patterson, in a grey tweed coat that suggested an English origin, and a grey felt hat, was seen chatting with friends. Mrs. Charles F. Patterson, the junior William Penn Snyders, the Howard Heinzes and Mrs. George Greer Coolidge were among other late arrivals at the show. Mrs. John Neale was there too, and Mrs. Harvey Childs III and Mrs. Stewart Johnson. The Lewis A. Parks were there, too. Mrs. Park, you know, just a little while ago was Frances Schoen.

The younger set had a very large representation yesterday, and many of the debbies of the past winter watched the show most attentively. Mary Louise Johnson, who made her bow to society in the fall, was entertaining a box party. She looked very smart in a blue tailored coat, blue dress, blue felt hat, and a blue plaid scarf.

Mary Mellon McClung, Anne Louise Marshall, Juliet Hillman, Mary Childs, and Margaret McCready, also buds of the past season, were enjoying the show, not the least depressed by the dark-browed sky.

Craigie McKay with youth's disregard for inclement weather, discarded her hat. She was talking in one of the boxes with as much animation as ever with Mrs. Harvey Childs III. Martha Brooks and Martha's house guest, Ruth Keeley, from Chicago.

Jean Browne Scott, from Philadelphia, was at the show, too, and of course she rode, appearing in two classes. I saw her early in the afternoon talking in one of the boxes with her cousin, Janet Hardie. Jean wore a white slicker over her frock, and a small gray felt hat. Another member of the younger set appearing in a swanky slicker was Althea Robinson, who chose green instead of white like Jean. Her hat was tan, trimmed in green felt, and she wore a tailored white sport frock.

Nancy Allderdice, Frances Fitzgerald, Harriet Ramsburg, another bud of the past winter, by the way, Virginia Willock, who will make her debut this winter; Elizabeth Leovy, Eleanor McCargo, Priscilla Hall and Betty Scott were other members of the attractive younger set who seemed to be enjoying the show.

Today, with the weather man's promise of unclouded hours, the grandstand will undoubtedly be crowded for the second day of the show.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

JUDGMENT'S TOLL

By PATRICIA MALLEY

"MR. KEARNEY? Yes, ask him to come up." Ray clicked the receiver in place and frowned slightly. It was just half-past 12. Dale was using his lunch hour to rush up for explanation.

"Was that Dale?" asked a panic-stricken voice. The doorway might have been a mirror reflecting Ray's somewhat Asiatic beauty. The same slender form but not quite the sophisticated posture, the identical straight, glossy black hair but lacking the piquant swirl.

Ray nodded absent-mindedly toward her twin then suddenly with keen suspicion she asked: "You look scared to death. Didn't you tell him that Cornelia was sick and had sent for me?"

"Yes, I did," answered May so quickly that her words fairly stumbled over each other, "but, listen to me, Ray. It was the last time I fibbed for you, understand? You've not treated Dale right. You've broken date after date just as soon as something better came along. You haven't appreciated the love of a fine boy like Dale. You can't love him—"

"Calm yourself, May; I can manage Dale without your agonizing."

"It isn't a case of managing," May told her earnestly, "I want you to listen to me, please! Be honest with me, Ray. Don't keep thinking I'm jealous of all your good times and popularity. You know I don't care for this mad chase after pleasure, that I've been perfectly contented with my studies. But you can't love Dale," she again said anxiously, "You really can't, Ray, when you break a dinner engagement with him to go out with a cheap movie actor—"

"Vance is a movie actor," interrupted Ray and added firmly, "but he's not cheap, I'd like you to know. And now as for Dale—no more fibs on your part will be necessary since it troubles your conscience to this distressing extent. I've made up my mind to marry him," she smiled and added flippantly, "I've always meant to love him in dead earnest, but I simply haven't had time!" She laughed teasingly at her twin's shocked face. "There's a little notice in the paper about his father being elected president of the Brentham Bank. That's Dale now, so make yourself scarce."

Dale Kearney, tall, blond and decidedly keen-eyed, came in, quite breezily. "Hello, Ray, how's Cornelia?" he asked smilingly.

Ray shot him an alert, questioning glance, but she answered lightly, "Oh, much better this morning!" She really had telephoned to Cornelia an hour before.

"And yourself?" His pleasant deep voice shaded with the faintest menace.

"I brushed all the little grippe germs off." Her laughing, tilted face was a deliberate invitation, but Dale was opening his cigaret case.

"No skinned shins or scratched knees?" he asked coolly.

"Do you think poor Cornelia was delirious?" she questioned him flippantly but with the inward realization that there was a leak somewhere.

Dale said calmly: "Burnside Inn was raided last night." He lighted a cigaret.

Ray pretended a slight interest. "Really? Isn't that out near Buttermilk Falls? A lovely place, they say."

"No, a rotten place," Dale contradicted without raising his voice, "the kind of an inn where patrons scramble through the nearest windows when it's pinched. Are your stockings beyond repair?"

"Mine! What on earth do you mean?"

Dale, leaning forward in his chair, said quietly: "I saw you climbing out of a window at Burnside Inn this morning at 2 o'clock. That cheap movie actor, Vance, was with you."

"You're mistaken on two counts," Ray told him undisturbed. "You've mistaken me for somebody else, and secondly, Vance is a movie actor but he is not cheap."

Dale's eyes narrowed. "Well, if Vance isn't cheap he showed poor taste in taking you to a place like that, Ray. You were lucky to have a table just below a window or—" he met her eyes in a frank, firm glance, "you might have spent the remainder of the night in jail."

"It's evident that you were at Burnside Inn last night or rather this morning, Dale," she shook her head at him in disapproval, "and I do hope that you did not spend what was left of the night in jail."

"You forget, Ray, that the police commissioner is a personal friend of mine. He always promised to show me how a raid was done. I arrived at the inn exactly three minutes before the police came."

She came swiftly toward him with her light springy steps. "Dale!" and placed a small detaining hand upon his coat lapel, "Won't you listen to reason? There is such a thing as mistaken identity. Please do not force me to say something I should not, will you? It's so terribly difficult to explain. I thought Vance was perfectly o. k. Really, he's a nice chap and he isn't cheap, Dale. He doesn't know many people around here and he was lonesome. She hesitated, coloring. "Perhaps I should not have, Dale—but—well, you know, May hasn't any beaux and she's only human. I thought it would be perfectly all right, I just wanted May to have a little pleasure, poor child. You understand now, don't you, Dale? About the mistaken identity?"

Dale regarded her gravely for a second, then he smiled but he did not bend his head to meet hers. "You're quite right, Ray," he assured her. "May was at Burnside Inn last night. She was with me," he added distinctly and stepped abruptly out of the room.

Doctors warn: Most paper, sold for bathroom use, is not special toilet tissue at all, but ordinary tissue paper cut into rolls.

Common sense tells you that such paper is injurious. Made with impure by-products, glazed, hard-finished.

Scott tissues are special bathroom tissues. Just by feeling them, you are assured of their cloth-like softness—their high absorbency. Doctors approve Scott tissues. And women buy, every year, more than 107,000,000 rolls.

WOMAN BLOCKER OF DITCH WINS

Mrs. Helen Barr, of Electric avenue, North Braddock, who balked workmen by standing in a ditch on her property six weeks ago, has emerged a victor.

Attorney A. Leo Weil, Jr., in behalf of Mrs. Barr and her husband, Joseph Barr, withdrew injunction proceedings against the borough of North Braddock and McCrady Brothers, contractors. A settlement has been reached, Weil told Judge A. B. Reid, whereby a sewer line will be placed along the side of the Barr property instead of through the center as originally planned.

COURT CREATES NEW VOTING DISTRICTS

The division of Castle Shannon borough into four election districts instead of three was decreed in a final order handed down in Quarter Sessions Court yesterday by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen. Changes are made in the boundaries of the first and second districts, part of the third district is added to the second, and the remainder of the third is made into the third and fourth districts under the order.

The polling places of the first and second districts are unchanged. The polling place of the third district is fixed in the garage of Charles S. Zeiler, Library road, and of the fourth district in the building of Nicholas Harig, McRoberts road and Martha street.

These assessors and election boards were named, to serve until successors are elected: First district—Mary Adamson, assessor; Lottie Beltzhoover, judge; Stella Dunlap and Anna Adamson, inspectors. Second district—John Delaney, assessor; Stanley Dietrich, judge; Mrs. R. H. Hicks and Mrs. John A. Mahony, inspectors. Third district—William Dilla, assessor; Joseph Stick, judge; Harry Schneider and William Dilla, inspectors. Fourth district—Mrs. Elizabeth M. Hamel, assessor; John E. Ruhling, judge; Ferdinand Baldt and Mrs. Anna Jackey, inspectors.

Costs of the proceeding, $244, were placed on the county. The petition was presented by Samuel A. Schreiner, borough solicitor. Growth of the community was the reason assigned for asking the change.

MUSSOLINI & THE LIFE STORY of THE MAN OF DESTINY

Violence Marks Birth of Fascism in Italy

Mussolini Bluffs Radicals And Takes Courage Away From Them

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

From boyhood Mussolini was rebellious. He became a teacher but gave up the profession to travel abroad. In Switzerland he showed radical tendencies and was expelled from the country. As an irredentist he continued to get into trouble. He establishes a newspaper and his initiative wins him greater popularity. He advocated an intervention with Italy in favor of Belgium and France. In the World War he was wounded many times. Bolshevism grows in Italy after the armistice. Mussolini opposes Wilson's Fourteen Points.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

He Preaches Patriotism

By VITTORIO DE FIORI

CHAPTER XVII.

IN THE midst of the darkness and terror that attended the oncoming revolution, a single gleam of light shone through the red clouds that enveloped Italy. It radiated from Mussolini and his Popolo d'Italia. Clearly perceiving the dismal abyss into which the apostles of revolution were about to plunge his country, he began, with sublime daring and at the risk of his life, to preach the gospel of patriotism even more fervently than he had done hitherto.

BENITO MUSSOLINI

In March, 1919, he summoned to Milan his former army comrades and his political sympathizers and founded his first "Fascio di Combattimento," composed of 150 members, young men filled with courage and a dauntless determination to stamp out at all costs the Bolshevik menace that was about to grip Italy.

The avowed purpose of the Fascio was "to function as an armed revolutionary group dedicated to the resurrection of the national ideal and to the destruction of the forces that were attempting to reduce the Italian people into a chaotic, amorphous mass, similar to the people of Russia."

At that time this program seemed ridiculously impossible and doomed to certain failure. The Italian press completely ignored the foundation of the new revolutionary group. Only the Popolo d'Italia sustained its right to live and flourish, and Mussolini, in one of his editorials, prophesied to the remainder of the press:

"One day you speak about Fascism! Yes, you will speak about it, and very much at length!"

Bluffs Radicals

When the radical press issued its threat: "We shall erect our barricades in the streets!" Mussolini thundered back:

"Erect them if you dare! You will find us ready to blow them up underneath you!"

When the radicals cried out: "We shall begin our revolution," Mussolini replied:

"Go ahead! Begin it, if you are not bluffing!"

The humorous part of it was that it was Mussolini himself who was bluffing. If the radicals had had the courage, they could have brought a revolution to a successful completion at that time, for there was practically no one to resist them. But the disorderly, fanatical red hordes lacked a true leader. Nikolai Lenin knew it.

"Why have you lost Mussolini?" were the first words with which he greeted a delegation of Italian Socialists and labor leaders, who went to Russia in 1919 to present the red czar with the homage of Italy's reds, on the eve of their triumph. "You have made a great mistake. He was a resolute, energetic man, who would undoubtedly have led you to victory."

"Yes, I know," replied Trotzky to an Italian radical chieftain who was discussing Italy's real conditions with them, "they threw away Mussolini, their only trump card, the one man who could really have carried out a revolution for them."

Death of Giordani

Meanwhile Mussolini was gathering more and more adherents under the black flag of Fascism. His efforts were rewarded with unhoped-for success. The sound element of the nation began to rally around him, beholding in him the leader of a movement that was to save Italy from annihilation.

Conscious of his ever-growing power, he stood erect and defiant in the midst of the Bolshevik whirlwind. Attended by his followers, his "darkest-hour Facists," he went out into the streets, revolver in hand, dispersing the radicals and driving them back into their lairs.

At first progress was slow. The Facists outnumbered ten to one, would come back decimated by death whenever they ventured out on a punitive raid. Then a brutal incident gave Fascism a sudden, tremendous impulse: the Socialist majority in the Municipal Council of Bologna deliberately planned and carried out, in the Town Hall itself, a massacre of the members of the Liberal and Fascist minority. Among those shot down in cold blood was Giulio Giordani, one of Italy's most famous war heroes and an invalid. This savage murder of a defenseless cripple, who was loved and admired by all Italians because of his innumerable deeds of valor, created such a state of popular indignation that recruits began to flock by the thousands to the Fascist ranks. From that time, the Fascist movement gained impetus, acquiring new members and receiving the support and

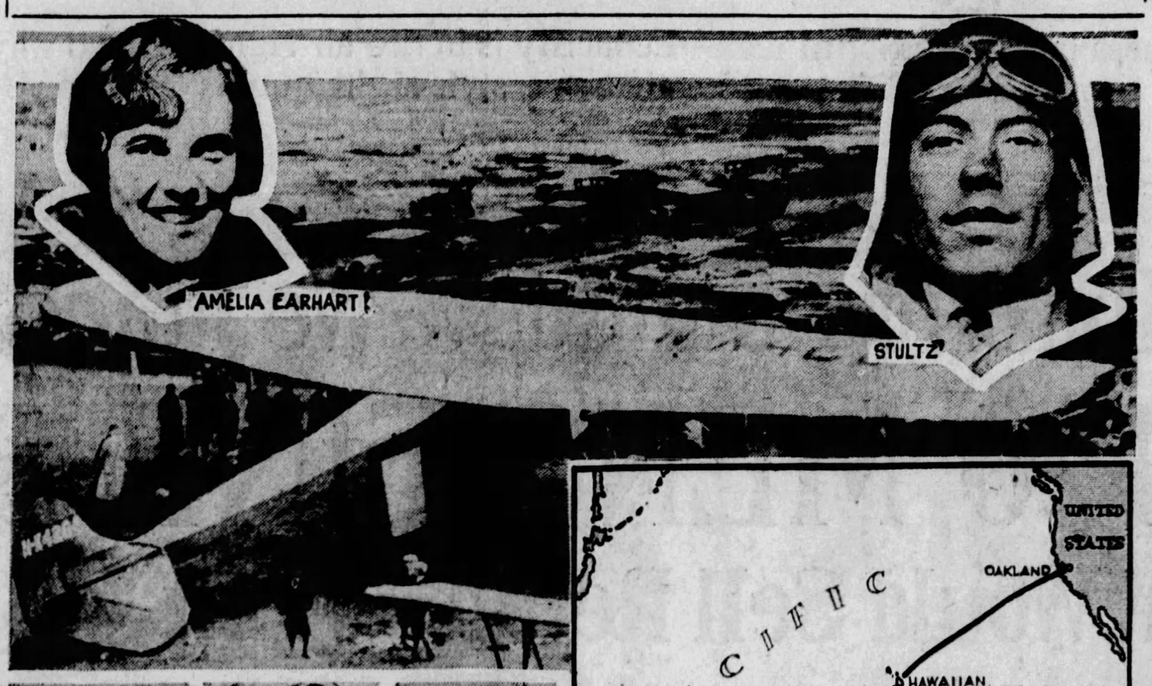
"WHO'S WHO" IN THE AIR THIS JUNE DAY



MABEL BOLL

SOUTHERN CROSS 'UP'

On this nice June day, the four gallants who have been making steady marches on the Pacific Ocean have clarified a suspended air situation merely by taking off on another dangerous ocean flight on the last of their Oakland-Honolulu-Suva-Brisbane-Sydney flight. They leave two very, very anxious women on the Atlantic seaboard running a race to cross that ocean by standing still. Weather holds back, they say, the Atlantic flights, one perhaps to London and the other perhaps to Rome.

ANTI-HOOVERITES MAY TURN TO COOLIDGE

KANSAS CITY, June 8.—(AP.)—The line of battle for the Republican presidential nomination stood clearly defined today between Herbert Hoover and a determined group organized and pledged to defeat him.

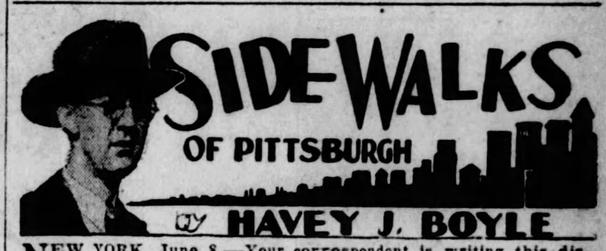
Mobilized to stem the cabinet member's progress toward the nomination, the combined strength of Lowden, Curtis, Watson, Goff and the remnants of the Willis organization has fixed one immediate objective—the blocking of Hoover's selection on an early ballot.

With the forces thus organized the strategy councils of the combined opposition now are canvassing the means by which they can prevent Hoover from getting the necessary 545 nominating votes. The aim of these strategists is to hold intact the votes of their own candidates while endeavoring to wean from the Hoover and doubtful delegations enough strength to keep the issue in doubt.

Analyzing Hoover's second-choice support as his weakest point, the opposition councilors are searching for a rallying standard toward which that support might be drawn. Some of them have injected the name of President Coolidge as a magnet that they believe might prove irresistable and accordingly have suggested the wisdom of switching some of their own votes to Coolidge on the opening ballot.

LAWRENCE COURTHOUSE REPAIRS DISAPPROVED

NEW CASTLE, Pa., June 8.—Further improvement to the present court house would be a waste of money, the grand jury reported in a presentment made to court.



By HAVEY J. BOYLE

NEW YORK, June 8.—Your correspondent is writing this dispatch in the Forrest Hotel, New York, in the suite occupied by Milt Crandall, Pittsburgh boy, who is about to descend on Broadway two days hence with the international marathon dance contest in Madison Square Garden. We refer to the coming event by its original name, the international dance marathon, although today Mr. Crandall issued orders to the retinue of help surrounding him that, henceforth—and he waved his hat in the air as he said it and assumed the tone of the announcer of the circus wonders—that henceforth the big event was to be called the dancing derby of the century. He was quite enthusiastic about it.

We are interrupted in writing this dispatch by the entrance of Eddie Leonard, who, you may remember, is the Pittsburgh plasterer who, along with Marion Jacques, his little dancing partner, danced in Pittsburgh along with two other couples from Monday night until the following Saturday midnight. Eddie says he and Marion got here last Sunday, the couple being chaperoned by Mrs. Mary Leonard, Eddie's mother. He says he and Marion are going to enter the coming marathon with a determination to win, which will carry them to victory over the 100 and more couples from all parts of the country, including Broadway.

YOU may remember Eddie as the husky boy with the frail dancing partner at Motor Square Garden. Everyone felt sorry for the frail little girl until that night when Eddie, the plasterer, suffered a nose bleed, whereupon his frail partner busied herself nursing him back to his pristine strength. After that we knew Marion wasn't frail.

Eddie is sitting there now, over on that chair, dressed in a blue suit, a blue shirt and a leghorn hat turned down on all sides and ends. He says he wants to win this marathon event, which carries a prize of $5,000 offered by M. Crandall and Tex Richard. First, because Eddie could use half of that amount, and second, because little Marion, his dancing partner, wants her share for a useful purpose.

IT SEEMS Marion has a sister way down in Elkins, W. Va., who has been putting off a necessary operation for the sound economic reason that she lacks the necessary cash. Marion wants to dance her way into that operation money, for if she wins she is going to accommodate her sister with the very best surgeon in the country. "By gosh," says Eddie, "How are they going to beat us with that at stake!"

* * *

Eddie's trainers are due here sometime today. Maybe you know them, if you know the East Liberty section very well. Anyway, his trainers are Nig Brown, George Walker, Frank Smith, Bill Tappy and Tom Dolan. The last named will be the chief second for Eddie as he used to be the chief second for Harry Greb.

THE headquarters is a very strange place. A great many residents of this huge melting pot want to enter the dance, and while their feet are willing, their speech is weak. That is to say, quite a few Spaniards and other kinds of foreigners doing stage work and all that sort of stuff, want to shoot at the big prize in the international dance derby of the twentieth century. Unable to speak English coherently, they gesticulated wildly so long that Mr. Crandall installed an interpreter who now attends to the wants of this sort of entry. Right now, the babel outside the room would remind one of Geneva or The Hague, if one ever had been at either place.

Just now Baron Giorgio Mario Suriani has come in to arrange for his entry into the dance. Recently the Baron startled the U. S. with a handsome offer to marry any American girl for the small consideration of $100,000. With his soft hand in marriage, of course, would go his elegant title. The Baron, right now, truth to tell, is a little hard up and in making a dicker with M. Crandall is prompted more by a certain urge from the region of his stomach than from any deep-seated desire to improve the terpsichorean outlook of the country.

M. CRANDALL introduced your correspondent to the good Baron, who was, to put it very mildly, quite a lovely creature from his spats to his cane, and not counting his mustache and fetching accent. He is a real Baron, too.

Before we end this dispatch we must tell you that at this sentence Marion Jacques has just come in to say hello and to wave a sort of typographical greeting to her many friends in Pittsburgh. She wore a dark coat and a tan hat. Marion weighs all the way to 97 pounds and she says this total is three pounds more than she weighed in the Pittsburgh marathon.

Eddie Leonard was with her when she came and Marion squeezed Eddie's hands when she said: "I'd like to see any New York couple beat us out." Eddie smiled appreciatively.

LEGION POST IS FETED BY GERMANS

Seventy-five Germans and Austrians who fought for their countries in the World War opened wide their doors last night and played host to 75 American war veterans. In the Central Athletic Association the German World War Veterans' Association entertained the Pittsburgh City Post of the American Legion, just as three weeks ago the Legionnaires had been host to the Germans.

Instead of No Man's Land, they looked at each other across a table that was filled with food worth reaching for. Everybody reached. Rather than cries of battle, one heard uneven harmony which concerned the certain "mademoiselle from Armentieres" and the admonition that "You're Not Behind the Plow."

"Let us have no more war," said Ira Smith, Commander of the Legion Post. "Let us work for peace," advised Reinhard Ulrich, gray-haired president of the German-American Federation who wore the uniform 50 years ago.

Other speakers were W. S. Voorsanger of the Legion, John E. Loibl, German vice consul to Pittsburgh, and Dr. Frank J. Cryns, toastmaster. The general committee included Hans Fischer, Herman Markus, Julius Herald, Harry Hedfeld, L. J. Koetz, Karl Eller, Hans Hoffman and Otto Kalteis.

ELLWOOD CITY CHILD CUT BY HORSESHOE

ELLSWOOD CITY, Pa., June 8.—Gene Strohecker, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Strohecker, was cut above the left eye when struck by a horse shoe. She was watching a game when one of the contestants made a wild pitch.

22 DANCERS STILL UP AT 104 HRS. IN MARATHON

CHARTER BOAT FOR DERBY ON SUNDAY

NEW KENSINGTON Pa., June [illegible] Eleven couples were buttoneer[illegible] the Allegheny Valley's dance [illegible] at the Nu-Kan Gardens here [illegible] o'clock this morning when the [illegible] hundred and fourth hour [illegible]ned. One team Edith Bussman and George Duffer of Springdale, after completing 98 hours and 15 minutes, quit early today.

Of the remaining teams, one was said to appear ready to quit, but the others seemed fit to take the boat ride scheduled to start at midnight Saturday.

Miss New Kensington will be selected this afternoon from among a score or more bathing beauties to represent New Kensington in the Conneaut Lake contest from which Miss Pennsylvania will be chosen.

Last nights' crowd was the largest of the week and streets surrounding the Gardens were roped off and traffic rerouted. Numerous special prizes and cash awards were made to the contestants. Homewood's team, Herman Ross and Theresa James, was presented with a well-filled purse by business men of that district. East Liberty's team, James L. Powell of Shady avenue, and Ruby Rich, of Courtland street, dropped out last evening.

At 11:45 o'clock Saturday night the dancers will be taken in trucks to a boat and a trip to East Liverpool, the promoters say. Dancers, their trainers, borough officials, three orchestras and several entertainers are to be taken along. Reservations, it is said, have been made by 800 spectators.

Of the 25 couples who started at 8 p. m. last night in another dance marathon in the Academy Theater, 24 still were hoofing late today. The one team which quit was Anna Mae Smith, of 904 East Diamond street, and Albert Schakmans, of 205 Wick street.

LEGION AIDES' HEAD HONORED AT BANQUET

Mrs. Robert Walbridge, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, was honored last night at a banquet held at the William Penn Hotel by the state auxiliary of the organization. Maj. Edwin E. Hollenback, state commander of the legion, was the principal speaker. Mrs. William Speakman of Wilmington, Del., national vice president of the auxiliary; Mrs. Frederick Pettes Moore, state president; Mrs. George Phelps Rose and Mrs. Walbridge also spoke. There was also a musical program offered.

BUGS BAER Says

(Copyright, 1928)

AN English inventor, with a beautiful idea of what's whatless, bobs up with the finest piece of constructive dibdabs that has been evolved since Noah went in the fur business.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Ever since the ox-cart grabbed the right-of-way from the one-passenger mule, drivers of vehicles have been annoyed by the back-seat chauffeur.

The rear-end motorman is the turkey who perches in the grumble seat and steers with shrieks, gestures and whistles.

The back-seat driver has annoyed civilization more than the man who invented the flat soup spoon. He is about as useful as the wrong side of a Hollywood picture exterior.

There have been many attempts to delete him from the channels of commerce but the English idea seems healthiest.

He reverses the grumble seat so that the back-seat driver faces the setting sun on Saturdays and holidays.

By the time he has pointed toward danger the car is past it. But more can be done with the idea. Why not convert the grumble seat into an old-fashioned Massachusetts ducking stool? Dip the back-seat driver into every puddle and pond on the joyful itinerary.

Or attach the back seat to the front porch. As you motor away for the afternoon you leave the professor of educational complaints firmly planted on the vanishing veranda.

The rear guard of motoring is the first cousin of rain, accidents and stripped gears. There would never be any collisions if he didn't suggest them first.

He is the original defeatist who gains his aim by the use of deprecatory propoganda and infiltration of an inferiority touring complex.

Turning his seat around is a help but not enough. It should be wired up with the batteries and the exhaust pipe should be twisted so that the contents escape down the back of his neck.

THE CONSTANT FLAME

A Fair Maid Meets Love In Strange Surroundings

by WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Kitten and the Girls Go for a Ride With Keets Bradley

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Emily Day and Kitten are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily has made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Marty Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her. Mrs. Frances Haiden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her and tells her the only aristocracy is that of work. She gets a job with Mrs. Haiden. Her father dies and Rossiter offers help which her mother declines. Avis Rossiter's father threatens to disinherit her unless she changes her ways. Avis proposes to Marty and is refused.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

KATHRYN DAY, called "Kitten" by those who loved her and thought long, anxious thoughts about her, Dottie Brent and the forbidden Flossie Gaines.

Three girl-kids going out to meet adventure, seeking it in unlikely places, all a-quiver with eagerness.

Three youngsters who considered life a bright thing to be tossed back and forth from one hand to the next.

"Look, Floss, the sheik in the big car. Oh, he's smiling. What d'you spose he's doing out all by himself?"

"It's the Norris car—you know, that's their place up on South Mountain. Ten bathrooms, I heard . . . Prob'ly he's a relative."

"Well, he's looking back—"

Giggles. Heads tossing, the black, the brown, the red. Three slender figures pausing before a window, picking out among the reflections there that of the big car. It was turning in the middle of the street, loitering along the curb. The "sheik" was leaning out, watching them intently.

"Well, for goodness' sake—"

"Oh, shut up, Kitten. It was you gave him the joyful eye."

Kitten drew herself up stiffly and turned a cold look upon the others. It was a scathing burlesque of dignity. "I'll thank you to remember I'm not that kind of a girl, if you'll please be so kind."

"Ho, any ole time! You hear that, Floss? Not that kind of a girl, oh, no! Little white sister, Kitten is, I guess maybe. Ho!"

The two put their arms around each other and screeched with laughter.

People stared.

Kitten picked up the vanity case which dangled from her wrist, snapped it open with a grand duches manner, ran a wafer of lamb's wool over her pert nose. In the mirror she saw the big car halted; the driver still leaned out, watching.

"Well, come on if you're coming," she said.

They went into the ice cream shop and found a table at the back where they ordered "Dream of Love" sundaes.

The boy who took their order bent over the table with a knowing leer. "Youse gals say sundaes? 'Cause they's other kinds of them dreams and I'm the lad knows 'em all."

Dottie and Flossie snickered but Kitten waved him away. "Small time," she remarked. "Don't waste your energy."

They settled down to conversation. "He says—" "I says—" "A fierce time getting out of the house any more. Folks that's snoopy—" "Told mine if they didn't like it I'd leave—" "Oh, you've got orange lip-stick? Let me try it—"

"Seen those black chiffon undies at the Specialty Shop?" This from Dottie. "Maybe I wouldn't like some! But Stell said she's tell father about the night I climbed out the window—"

Flossie Gaines turned her eyes sidewise and half closed them in an expression infinitely blase. "Stell better watch her own step if you want to believe what you hear."

"Yeah?" Dottie flushed angrily. "Guess that sounds good coming from you. What's the matter Floss—jealous?"

Reed splashed the other girl's face and went creeping up under the short hair. Not so many months ago it was before her door the lemon-colored roadster stopped after dusk—always after dusk—and it was to her the horn blared its message.

Skeets Bradley played 'em young or not so young; it mattered little to him as long as there was variety.

Now there might have been high words and a scene had not Kitten interrupted quickly.

They faced about and three heads, the black, the brown, the red, drew together. The "sheik" was coming into the front of the store; he was pausing at the counter sending a questing look around.

"Well, of all the nerve—"

"Gosh, he's a good looker. I like 'em dark and thin. Spose he's a Norris? Class, I guess!"

Kitten, who said nothing, was the one his glance picked out. He half smiled, snatched off his cap and came forword with a show of diffidence.

"Haven't I met you somewhere?" he asked softly, eyes on the flaming hair. "Seems I remember that mop."

"What if you have?" Kitten was very cool.

"Why then," he said laughing, "I'd ask if you didn't want to go for a little ride around. Fair enough isn't it?"

Dottie and Flossie squealed; Kitten's pose wasn't proof against the prospect of the big car. She flushed and stammered and he paid their bill as the four of them went rather awkwardly into the street.

Kitten rode beside him in front. Her friends kept up a chatter in the rear, waving at whomever they knew. But she had little to say.

He drove out of Lyall and back into the country; before a low lying and extremely ornate building set in the midst of a pretentious lawn he halted the car. This was Deep Valley Inn, a roadhouse noted for a set of fast-moving and high-stepping patrons.

"Want to drop in?" he asked, watching her face.

Shrieks of "Oh, lets!" from the back seat and doors being torn open. Kitten looked at the Inn, felt a little thrill of longing, another of caution. The last was stronger.

"How about it, Red-head?"

"Not today, Mr. Norris."

"Say, it ain't Norris: It's Lanier and the handle's Ted. Going to remember that till tomorrow when I see you again?"

"Who says so?"

"Your new boy-friend, Reddy."

"Any ole time—"

But she did promise to meet him. Not the next day but the one after, she said, when the other girls had gone and they were saying good-night a block away from home.

(To be continued tomorrow.)

HOOVER-SMITH NECK AND NECK

HOOVER 302
SMITH 300

A poll of workmen at the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, taken as they were quitting work for the day, disclosed that 302 are for Hoover for President, and 300 for Smith. Of those polled, 290 voted for Coolidge four years ago and 40 for Davis. The others either did not vote at the last election or did not indicate how they voted.

Adding the Westinghouse vote to that taken in the Henry W. Oliver Building, as published in The Sun-Telegraph yesterday, gives the following grand totals in the personal canvass of voters: Hoover, 669; Smith, 467; Coolidge, 24; for Coolidge four years ago, 616; for Davis four years ago, 81.

The mail vote, recorded on ballots clipped from The Sun-Telegraph and sent to this office by citizens on their own initiative, shows 1,788 for Smith and 350 for Hoover. Of the mail voters 1,361 voted for Coolidge at the last election and 227 for Davis.

SEIZE ALCOHOL IN PEARL ST.

Alcohol and other contraband of a total value of $8,000 were confiscated, Federal prohibition agents said this morning, in a raid on a garage in the rear of Pearl street, near Lorigan street, last night. John Scanga, 31, of Pearl street, and Harry Cavalieri, 26, of Wellwood street, were reported arrested. The seizures included more than 300 gallons of alcohol, 14 barrels of wine and 100 empty five-gallon cans, agents announced.

Agents are searching for the occupant of the dwelling at 306 Thirty-fourth street as a result of a raid. A still and 45 gallons of moonshine were seized, according to the raiders.

Simple Remedy For Bad Stomach Gives Swift Relief

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet Safe and Simple Home Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition.

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this simple advice.

Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants or pull down your system with starvation diets. For within reason most folks may eat what they like—if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion.

And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with three or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless, inexpensive and handy tablet form of Magnesia that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A sweet trial of Bisurated Magnesia tablets, which May Drug Co. or any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that 90 per cent of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary. Be sure to get Bisurated Magnesia Tablets!

Mussolini
His Life Story

sympathy of the overwhelming majority of the Italian people.

Defeated in Election

It is undoubtedly difficult for Americans, born and brought up in a land where law and order are generally respected and enforced, to admit the possibility or necessity of a state within a state, of a military organization having the power to dispense justice outside of and above legal procedure, but this phenomenon has had a counterpart in practically all nations where the authority of the state was for a time weakened or nonexistent. In America itself, the Ku Klux Klan of the reconstruction period and the Vigilantes of the Southwest employed methods similar to those of the Fascists, though their aims were different.

In September, 1919, D'Annunzio seized Fiume. Mussolini approved of the poet's exploit, which he looked upon as a defense of Italy's rights and a protest against the Treaty of Versailles. He gave D'Annunzio all possible material and moral support, and hailed him as a brother exponent of the spiritual revolt against anti-nationalistic degeneracy.

The whirlwind of Bolshevism gave no sign of abating, but in every region of Italy the ranks of the Fascists grew, inspired by a powerful nationalistic sentiment and by the authority and magnetism of their leader.

Urged by his followers, Mussolini appeared as a candidate in the general elections of 1919. But the time was not yet ripe, and Bolshevism still enjoyed numerical superiority. He was soundly beaten. The Socialists, rejoicing over their victory, organized a monster mock-funeral, which filed for hours, in the murky night, through the streets of Milan, repeatedly passing under the windows of Mussolini's home, where his wife and children were anxiously waiting for news of their loved one. Mussolini, with a maniple of his followers, stood firm at his post in his newspaper office, ready to repel the expected attack of that multitude frenzied with hatred. To those who sang his "Requiescat" he replied with a defiance that sounded like the death-knell of haughty despair. But despite their overwhelming numbers, they knew him and his followers too well to attempt direct physical violence that night.

The news of his defeat was hailed with joy by radicals of all shades. But the leader of the Fascists still remained as a stumbling block in their path.

Mysterious Visitor

One day a laborer from Genoa appeared in the office of Il Popolo d'Italia, and asked to speak to the editor on a private matter. The suspicion of the staff was aroused by his mysterious behavior, and Mussolini was warned. Nevertheless he decided to receive his strange visitor in his private office.

The laborer had a revolver in his pocket, but when he found himself face to face with the man he had vowed to kill, he changed his mind. Before the piercing eye and calm scrutiny of the man who had faced a thousand storms, the Genoese laborer confessed the true purpose of his visit and surrendered his weapon to Mussolini.

Mussolini took him out to dinner and paid his fare back to Genoa.

A few days after his electoral defeat, Mussolini was calmly seated in his office, facing one of his assistants. Beneath his window a red parade was filing by with shouts of: "Death to the bourgeoisie! Death to Mussolini! Long live Russia!"

In front of Mussolini, on his desk, was a large glass of milk which he occasionally stirred with a teaspoon, and within reach of his hand lay his inseparable revolver. From the street came the ever more menacing howls of the red mob, the thunderous voices of the police who guarded the building, the rattle of musket-butts on the cobble stones. Mussolini, calmly and dispassionately stirring his milk, remarked to his assistant:

"They shout and yell and threaten and make a deuce of a noise but after all, they are a pack of cowards. Don't think for a minute that they would have the courage to come up here. They know that in order to get me they would first have to face my revolver, and they know that I could kill at least two of them before they could touch me, and in all of Milan there are no two of them who are brave enough to face certain death. So, I drink my milk."

Premier Nitti was overjoyed to hear of Mussolini's defeat, and had the office of Il Popolo d'Italia searched no less than four times in one day.

Imprisoned Again

Only the truly faithful continued to remain around Mussolini now that the icy blast of failure seemed to have blown upon him. "That was an unfortunate attempt!" said one fair-weather friend. "The people are tired of wars and patriots!" hinted another. "Don't worry!" Il Duce replied calmly. "Have faith and patience. Within two years, I promise you a wonderful victory!"

One misty day in November a police officer entered the office. "Professor," he said with a sarcastic smile, "the police commissioner would like to speak to you."

"Tell the Police Commissioner that I have nothing to say to him," Mussolini replied evenly.

The officer had no warrant. "Very well," he said, and departed. A few hours later he came back, this time with a warrant. Mussolini said:

"I have defended Italy in the streets, in the trenches, in newspapers, with my pen and with my sword. I have nothing on my conscience. However, if my arrest can help you to restore order, I am ready to accompany you."

Thanks to the energetic protest of some friendly Deputies, he spent only one day in prison.

It was on this occasion that the Avanti! jokingly reported that Mussolini's putrefied corpse had been found in the river Naviglio.

bers and mix with an equal amount of chopped celery and grated pineapple. Pile into the cucumber boats and chill thoroughly. Blend a cream cheese with sufficient pineapple juice to make it the consistency of thick cream. Serve over the cucumbers, which have been placed on a bed of lettuce leaves.

I THINK this chocolate cake will be quite a favorite. You will need ½ cup of shortening, 1 1-2 cups of sifted brown sugar, 2 egg yolks beaten light, 4 ounces of chocolate, melted, ½ cup of sifted brown sugar, ½ cup of boiling water, ½ cup sour milk, 2½ cups wheat flour, ⅓ cup cornstarch, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 egg whites, beaten very light.

* * *

CREAM the shortening, beat into it half the first quantity of sugar. Beat the other half with egg yolks, then combine. Melt the chocolate over hot water and add the one-half cup of sugar and the boiling water, mix well and add to the first mixture, then the sour milk. Sift the flour with the spices, salt, soda and baking powder and add. Lastly, fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in three layers.

FOR the frosting, one and a half cups of granulated sugar, half cup of boiling water, three egg whites, beaten very light, half pound of fresh marshmallows, half teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

Melt sugar in boiling water, wash down sides of pan, cover and let boil three minutes; uncover and let boil until a little of the syrup dropped in cold water forms a ball. Pour syrup in a fine stream on the egg whites, beating constantly. Add marshmallows cut in quarters, flavoring and beat until cool. Use between layers and pour the remainder over the cake. And don't make "piggies" of yourselves.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!

by FRANK H. PACKARD

Bob Finds Verna, Who Still Thinks He Murdered Her Brother

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up in a fragile craft by Capt. "Scarfare" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives the various articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The Idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. Hidden in the hold of the ship he overhears five Chinamen plotting. The East Indian "Holy Man" is stabbed to death by one of the Chinamen. The Holy Man turns out to be Erna's brother, and she accuses Bob of the murder. Bob' life is threatened by the Chinamen. Bob is captured and left bound on the sinking boat. Verna is taken prisoner, Bob escapes from the sinking boat. He saves the life of a Malay and earns his friendship.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"GOOD!" said Bob Kingsley warmly. "Let nothing, then, be known of this; and when you have found the schooner, go aboard and speak to the serang, whose name is Nanu. Say to him that Tuan Bob's orders are that he is to leave the schooner wherever it may be, and that with all his men he is to come swiftly and secretly to me.

"Tell him that my enemies are the five Chinamen in this boat. Tell him that if harm has meanwhile befallen me, he is to give aid, even at the cost of his life, to the white woman who is now ashore, and whose name is Lyle. Is this understood?"

"It is understood, Tuan."

"We are near the shore now," said Bob Kingsley. "When the boat touches, wait for nothing, but go with all speed."

"If the distance were known, I could set the hour of my return," said Kafan earnestly. "If I am long will the Tuan still be safe?"

"If God wills!" Bob Kingsley answered quietly. "But make ready! See! We are in the surf now!"

The boat was uplifted, crested water curled in over the gunwales. It swept forward in a breathless rush—touched bottom—receded—turned sideways—was lifted again, and was again swept onward—and once more its keel touched bottom. Chen-shu was screaming to his oarsmen; a half-score of dark forms on the shore—obviously some of those who had landed from Carter's boat—plunged into the water to grip the boat's sides in an effort to drag it up on the beach.

And now for a moment confusion reigned. The boat was unmanageable in the surf; the natives in the water lost their footing in the undertow.

"I go, O Master!" Kafan cried quickly—and sprang out over the boat's side.

Another second, and Bob Kingsley, too, was in the water. It was the one moment in which to reach the shore secure from any interference from Chen-shu and his men. His feet were pulled from beneath him by the undertow. He fell. He clawed his way onward—regained his feet, and ran up on the beach. The boat was being brought under control now; in another minute or so they would have her on the shore. He gave one glance in that direction, and then his eyes swept anxiously around him.

A figure was flying along the beach. It disappeared now in the darkness. Kafan! A little farther back from the shore was a small group of native women and children. Still farther to the right, perhaps a hundred yards away, and drawn up just beyond the water's edge, was another boat. Carter's boat, of course! And beside this boat, sitting alone on the beach, he made out a woman's form. A white woman from her dress. There had been only one white woman on the Monotah! He felt the blood pound suddenly, fiercely, in his veins.

He turned and ran at top speed in her direction.

CHAPTER XXV.

VERNA rose in a startled way to her feet as Bob Kingsley reached her side. Her face, he could see even in the darkness, was very white, very drawn, almost haggard. A strange confusion seemed to overtake her for an instant—only to be instantly vanquished the next. The little figure stiffened, her hands at her sides clenched tightly. She retreated a step from him before he could speak.

"I had thought you dead out there—that there were no more boats," she said in a dull voice. "And I was glad — because — because—God pardon me, it was the easiest way for me. You may have saved my life, but that does not condone, and never will condone, my brother's cowardly murder at your hands. If you had died out there, if in saving my life it had cost you yours, I think in time I would have come to have lost some of my hatred and my loathing for you. As it is, I loathe you the more now for the intolerable position in which you have placed me. I had rather you had not saved my life! Can you understand that? But if you thought, or now think, because you placed me in that boat, that I would allow you to escape the consequences of what you have done, you are miserably wrong."

Bob Kingsley's eyes had left the girl's face to fix intently on the spot along the beach where Chen-shu's boat was being pulled up now on the shore. There was movement there, a running to and fro, a gathering together in groups of the survivors from both boats. But it was too dark and the distance too great to pick out Chen-shu or any of his men from amongst the other natives. He answered her now, his eyes still holding warily along the beach.

"I have already told you," he said a little unsteadily, "that I had nothing to do with your brother's death, and that—"

"I came here, away from the others, to be alone for a little while," she interrupted uncompromisingly. "Will you go back to them, or shall I?"

There was still no move being made by Chen-shu and his four followers. Bob Kingsley noted now that the shore was thickly wooded some four or five hundred yards back from the beach, and for an instant he considered the advisability of seeking refuge there—then he discarded the idea. It was too far to go, and anyway it wasn't safe. One was much too easily come upon from all directions amongst the trees. He must keep open ground between himself and the Chinamen—and still find some sort of protection. His eyes played speculatively for a moment on the boat beside him. Yes! Why not? It would serve as well as anything he could hope for!

"Neither, Miss Lyle," he said—and now his voice was composed and quiet. "It is not safe there for either of us. I am afraid you will have to stay here with me."

Without answer she took a step past him.

He caught her arm quickly and drew her back.

She tried to break away from him, and, as he held her the more tightly, she stamped her foot furiously.

"Oh, if I were a man, if I had the strength," she cried. "I—I"

"You are making it very hard, Miss Lyle," he said. "I tell you it is dangerous. To put it bluntly, it would probably cost you your life to go over there. It is dangerous even to stand here—there is the risk of a shot. I want you to get behind the boat and sit down. It will at least afford temporary shelter."

"You are preposterous! Worse!" Her voice was almost out of control. "I don't know what your intentions are, but I know that I have nothing to fear from those poor souls out there. Here—with you—is the only place where I know I am not safe. And I will not stay here!"

Again she struggled to break away, and again Bob Kingsley held her back.

"Once before tonight," he said in sudden huskiness, "you obliged me to use main force for your own good. Am I to do it again? I am quite capable of it, you know and I will, unless you sit down there at once behind that boat!"

"I wish—I wish I had killed you when I fired at you!" Her voice, shaken with passion, was scarcely above a whisper. "Do you know what loathing means—the sight of you, the touch of your hands one me!"

"I am sorry," he said hoarsely. "Will you do as I ask you?"

"No!" she flung at him. "Stay here for an instant with the beast who killed my brother! No!"

He picked her up in his arms without a word, though she fought him furiously, carried her behind the boat, and set her down on the sand. He sat down beside her—but nearer the bow of the boat where, around the prow, he had an unobstructed view of the beach. And, fearful that she would make an attempt to spring to her feet and run from him, he still kept one hand on her arm.

"You will pay for this!" Her voice was suddenly, curiously listless. "You had better make the most of the time you have! It will not be for long. I suppose you know, I suppose they told you when you landed—or else you would not dare do this—that all the other boats were lost, and that even Mr. Carter, dying and too weak to save himself, was pitched into the water when, once, our boat went nearly over; but the serang was also in the boat, and he has gone for help to some place that he said was not far away. So—so it will not be for very long."

He saw the slim shoulders shake, the small head, with its wealth of hair that was tumbled in truant masses now about her face and neck, droop lower. She kept on striving, in almost a mechanical way now it seemed, to push his hand away.

"I won't hold you, if you will promise to stay where you are." He heard himself speaking; but his voice sounded unfamiliar—it broke strangely.

There was no answer.

He removed his hand from him arm.

She turned her head to glance at him quickly, as though to read and anticipate his next act, but made no other movement.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH (Combining The Pittsburgh Sun and The Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph) TWENTY-NINE

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

National's Selection of Later Opening Date Requires Approval of American—Deal for Hargreaves Helps Pirates—Burwell Makes Fine Start in Tough Spot—Scott Keeps Up Terrific Hitting.

THE action of the National League magnates at their special New York meeting yesterday in voting for a date about April 16 for the opening of the 1928 season, instead of so early a date as April 11, as was tried this year, cannot, of course, be accepted as final.

John A. Heydler.

That is, unless President John A. Heydler consulted the American League forces in advance and learned that they would not oppose such a change, for under the present schedule arrangement that enables the leagues to avoid conflicts, it is necessary for them to start their races about the same time.

THE National could not conveniently go ahead with its plan for an April 16 opening without inducing the American League to agree, so the reported "decision" to open on April 16 probably is in reality only a recommendation to be voted on later by the junior loop.

CONDITIONS may be good from April 11 to April 16 next year, and then suddenly go wrong at the new starting time. Or, if they are favorable at the start, and the later-than-usual world series resulting from the delayed finish is interfered with by poor weather, there will be another chorus of complaints such as we heard in 1925, with a clamor for an earlier start the following season.

THE big deal closed this morning, the second made by the Pittsburgh club within six days, whereby Catcher Charley Hargreaves was obtained by the Pirates in exchange for Catcher Johnny Gooch and Joe Harris, utility man, no doubt will be approved by Pirate followers in general as one that supplies a long-felt want—a right-hand hitting catcher.

Naturally, the departure of two such favorites as Gooch and Harris will be regretted, as both are very popular here, but the needs of the club called for first consideration.

BOTH Earl Smith and Gooch are left-hand hitters and Manager Bush for a year has been seeking a right-hand hitting backstop for use in games in which the opposing club uses a left-hand pitcher. Ralston Hemsley bats right-handed, but is comparatively inexperienced and has not proved himself a strong hitter.

Hargreaves is not only such a clever catcher that he was used in the big majority of Brooklyn's games, but he is a pretty reliable sticker, too, and from all angles ought to prove a valuable man to the Pittsburgh club.

The deal brings the Pirate roster down to the summer limit of 25 players, which will go into effect next Friday.

PICKING a hero in yesterday's Pirate victory at Boston would be no easy matter.

There was the fine pitching of Bill Burwell for four innings in his debut as a Buccaneer.

There was the continued great hitting of Pete Scott, who tore off two home runs and a double, his second homer winning the game in the twelfth round.

There was the batting of Clyde Barnhart, who made a home run and two singles and knocked in the tying run in the ninth frame with two out.

Clyde Barnhart.

And there was even the double by Paul Waner that drove home the first of the two deadlocking tallies registered in the ninth when an out would have ended the game, with Boston on top.

BUT it is probable that Burwell's pitching was the most satisfactory feature to Pirate rooters here at home. There had been some doubt as to how Burwell would fit in the Pirate scheme of things.

His courage had been proved in the World War as well as in previous trial in the majors, but whether or not he could hold his own against big league batsmen at the age of 33 and after seven years in the minors.

What a new pitcher does in his first game doesn't mean a thing, of course, but Burwell certainly gave local fans lots of ground for hope in his case.

IT WAS a tough spot in which the former Indianapolis flinger was placed for his first game, being sent to the slab in the ninth inning to hold a game safe in which the Bucs had just tied the score. It was up to him to win or lose, and it required a heap of gameness and steadiness, in addition to pitching ability. But Burwell was equal to the contract. He held the Braves runless and gave them only one hit, an infield scratch, in four innings, and in the last three frames he allowed only one man to reach first base. If his later work is like his start, local fans will have no reason to regret the trade of recent date that brought him here.

PETE SCOTT of late has been one of the outstanding sluggers of the majors. He has batted in the winning run for Pittsburgh in the last two contests. In his last four games has has made 11 hits in 20 times at bat for an average of .550, and his 11 safeties have totaled 22 bases, two home runs, a triple and three doubles being included.

Paul Waner.

Pete has boosted his season's average to .370 and has passed Paul Waner, leaving Grantham as the only Pittsburgh regular ahead of him in the hitting table.

Another development of yesterday's game was the deadlocking of the Waner brothers for the leadership in basehits on the Pittsburgh club. By making three hits while Paul was being held to two, Lloyd overcame his brother's one-hit lead, and today found them tied with 66 hits apiece, Wright ranking next with 58, followed by Grantham with 54.

THUS the Bucs have a clean record for the Eastern trip. They have played only two games and have won them both. They had to go into extra innings on each occasion to win—14 rounds in Brooklyn Sunday and 12 rounds in Boston yesterday. It may not be out of place to remark that a team which is winning extra-inning games is not quitting nor showing any tendency to let down or lose steadiness.

ROTH QUITS POST AS JOHNNIES' MANAGER

FAIRMONT, W. Va., June 8.—(AP.)—"Beebie" Roth, manager and first baseman of the Johnstown club of the Middle Atlantic League, has announced here that he has resigned as manager. Johnstown is in last place in the Middle Atlantic standings, and Roth said he was discouraged with the showing being made by the outfit. He will continue to play first base.

A successor has not been named.

CHAMPIONS ON EDGE FOR TILT HERE

By TOM BIRKS.

LOOKING as fit as the proverbial fiddle, the Glasgow Rangers, world's greatest professional soccer team, had a preliminary workout in the Pitt Stadium last evening in preparation for the battle tomorrow afternoon when Scotia's great champions meet the all-star team selected from Western Pennsylvania.

Viewing the magnificent home of the Blue and Gold of Pitt, the Scotch players praised the field that has seen such wonderful duels in collegiate football, and is due to see another great battle when two soccer teams swing into action tomorrow.

The squad was split into two teams and a spirited workout was held. Quite a large crowd watched the wonderful skill in ball manipulation of the visitors, as Allan Morton, Cunningham, Muirhead, Marshall and the other stars maneuvered the sphere. While nothing important hinged upon the workout, the artistry of the visitors was very much in evidence.

LIKE PITTSBURGH

Some of the players are still feeling the effects of that gruelling battle at Fall River Sunday, when everything seemed to go. A couple of more games like that on a cast iron field and the team will sail home, according to Jim Fleming, the big center forward.

The Rangers were not very much impressed in the reception at Fall River, but their hearts went out to Pittsburgh and the people who have been making their stay here enjoyable. The West Penn team had a workout in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and the players are reported to be in great shape.

The game is scheduled to start tomorrow at 5:30 p. m. This is due to the fact that a field meet is carded prior to the game. The gates will be opened at 5:15 to accommodate the crowd.

Manager Struth reports that all of the players are in great shape and the Ranger first team will surely start the game.

Pittsburghers are in for a treat. The art of sidestepping, ball trapping and other little tricks so common to professional soccer on the other side, together with its speed, has never been flashed here as yet.

M'TIGUE LOSES TO EMANUEL

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP.)—A shadow of old Mike McTigue, the ancient Celt, who scared many a heavyweight less than a year ago, battled powerful Armand Emanuel, father time, and leg weariness for 10 rounds last night and when it was all over had given the combined efforts of that trio one of the greatest fights New York ever has seen.

Mike didn't beat the clever youngster who came East from California labelled a coming champion, but he put Armand on the floor with a right hand smash in the first round for a count of nine and Mike was in there every minute thereafter, fighting his 40 years of age, weariness, and the strength of his young opponent with a gallantry and disregard for punches that had the customers cheering him to the echo.

In fact the faithful who have watched Mike fight the most thrilling and again the most boresome of battles failed to take kindly to the decision in favor of the clever, fast-stepping Jewish star. The fans booed the decision, probably more out of sympathy for the old fellow than with logical reason.

SCOTTISH PLAYERS SHOW CLASS AND SPEED

The members of the Scottish Rangers championship soccer outfit which plays a local all-star team in the Pitt Stadium tomorrow afternoon staged a limbering-up drill late yesterday, upon the conclusion of the scholastic track and field meet in the Stadium. Above is a bit of the action. Two of the players, Craig and Morton, are seen dribbling the ball down the field.

Burwell Is Star In Buc Debut

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, June 8.—When the Pirates gathered for breakfast this morning they were aware of the fact that there was a new star in camp despite the natural tendency of the stranger to erase himself from any spot that might be conspicuous.

William (Bill) Burwell today was smiling his good-natured smile as his new friends congratulated him on his brilliant rescue act of yesterday afternoon when the Pirates defeated the Braves, 8 to 6, after 12 rounds of hard fighting.

Burwell, the doughboy of San Mihiel, who all but lost one of his pitching fingers in the service, hurried to the center of the battlefield after the Buccos had effected a deadlock with two out in the ninth. Donie Bush, knowing his man, could not have made a better choice than the athlete who won 66 games for Bush in three years at Indianapolis.

Just one safety did the Hoosier graduate allow and that ball could have been scored either way. After failing to get the ball cleanly, Wright pulled Scott off the bag as he threw and the drive was recorded as a hit.

But before leaving Wright out of

PEABODY KEEPS TRACK TITLE

Peabody's crack track and field team retained its city senior high school championship at the annual meet in the Pitt Stadium yesterday. The Lambie-coached athletes piled up a total of 54½ points. Schenley was second with 43, and Westinghouse third with 36.

In the junior class, the Westinghouse team finished first, scoring 35 points, with Schenley second with 16.

The Watt School team won in the pre-vocational class, annexing 29½ points. Conroy finished in second place with 11.

KING'S HORSE SECOND

EPSOM, England, June 8.—(INS.)—King George's horse, Scuttle, ran second in the Oaks on Epsom Downs today. The race was won by Toboggan. Fiegere finished third.

fore noon today from his father, who still is in the East.

1922 GOOCH'S BEST YEAR

All of Gooch's experience as a major league catcher came as a member of the Pirates, who obtained him from the Birmingham Barons of the Southern Association in September of 1921. Gooch finished the season of 1921 with the Corsairs, appearing in 13 games and winding up with an average of .237. The following season was the best Gooch ever enjoyed with the Freebooters, he appearing in 103 games and finishing with a batting mark of .329, the only time he hit above .300 during his stay with the Pirates.

During the next five years Gooch was forced to divide his work with the other members of the Pirate receiving staff. He batted .277 in 1923, .290 in 1924, .298 in 1925, .271 in 1926 and .258 in 1927.

Gooch appeared in two world series with the Corsairs, in 1925 and 1927, failing to get a single hit in either of the fall classics.

His batting average for the seven years he was a member of the Corsairs was .288.

Gooch was born in Smyrna, Tenn., on November 9, 1898, bats left-handed, throws right-handed, weighs 170 pounds and stands 5 feet 10½ inches.

JOE WITH MANY CLUBS

Harris, a native of Coulter, Pa., received his first major league trial with the New York Yankees in 1914, although the records fail to disclose his average. He was obtained from the Chattanooga club of the Southern Association on trial and was returned by the Yankees. After going through the World War with honors, Harris played independent ball with the Franklin club, and when that organization disbanded he was reinstated and signed by Cleveland. He batted .304 and .375 during the two years he was a member of the Indians, being traded to Boston in 1921 for Stuffy McInnis.

He finished the 1922, 1923 and 1924 season with the Red Sox, batting .316, .335 and .301, respectively. In 1925 the Red Sox traded Harris to the Senators for Pitcher Zahniser and he finished the year with them with an average of .307, figuring prominently in the winning of the pennant by the Nats. He appeared against the Pirates in the world series of 1925, batting .440 in the fall classic.

Harris played 92 games for the Senators in 1926 and boasted a batting average of .307. Last year he

SPEAKING OF SPORTS by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

SUPPOSE the New York Yankees, champions of Baseballdom, should visit Paris or London or Berlin for an exhibition of the national pastime. Would the American-born residents of the town and surrounding territory turn out en masse for the attraction?

You said it, bo!

BY the same token, can you imagine any Scotchman in this vicinity passing up the appearance of the Scottish Rangers, the world champions of their sport, the New York Yankees of soccer, at the Pitt Stadium tomorrow afternoon?

In Scotland and, in fact, throughout Great Britain, the name of the Rangers is a household byword and has been for years and every Briton who can will embrace the opportunity to see the pride of his homeland in action on American soil.

TOM BIRKS, our soccer editor, tells me that the Rangers have a value as a team of about a million and a half dollars. Individuals on the team could be sold to other clubs for as much as $75,000. That compares favorably with our selling prices for star baseball players.

These figures should serve to give the average American sports-lover who hasn't given much thought to soccer and has been wondering what all the fuss over the coming of the Rangers is about some concrete idea of the magnitude of the attraction that will be served up in the Stadium tomorrow.

THE Rangers worked out lightly in the Stadium yesterday, upon the conclusion of the track meet for high and grade schools, and they were loud in their praise of the athletic plant. They said it was one of the finest fields on which they ever had cavorted and were amazed at the construction of the stands, which afford an unobstructed view of the play from every seat.

"We have nothing like this back home, nor have we seen anything like it on our American tour so far," one of the players said. "We have two parks in Glasgow, Scotland, that have a seating capacity of 100 000 each, Hamden Park and Ibrox Park, but neither accords such a fine view of the play."

ANOTHER sight that delighted the eyes of the visitors was the scholastic meet. It was the first time they ever had seen such an organized competition for youngsters vieing as school teams.

"No wonder America is supreme in the athletic world," Fleming, the center forward of the Rangers, said, as he looked on at the panorama of events that was being unfolded. "Back home we have no such athletics for our boys and girls. Perhaps at school picnics and other outings we may have races and games, but we do not go in for

HIGH AND GRADE SCHOOL ATHLETES COMPETE FOR HONORS

The survivors of elimination track and field meets held in the high and grade schools of Allegheny county met yesterday in the Pitt Stadium to decide the year's titleholders. Above are some of the winners. Russell, of Westinghouse High School, won the junior high jump with a leap of 5 feet 5 inches; McKnight, of Peabody, cleared the bar in the pole vault at 10 feet 6 inches and Fleming, of Westinghouse, set a new record of 20 feet ¼ inch in the broad jump. The previous mark was 18½ feet.

schoolboy sports on the scale that you do over here, I shall agitate the copying of your system when I return to Glasgow."

Fleming, by the way, in addition to being a member of the team, acts as correspondent for the Glasgow papers on the American tour.

THE Rangers were loud in their praise of their treatment over here with the exception of Fall River, Mass., where they say they received a considerable roughing up in a scoreless game which the Fall River team tried mightily to win. The Fall River field is laid out on a hard cement surface and the Scotch stars, unaccustomed to taking the bumps under these conditions, were a badly bruised lot before the fracas was over.

D. E. BENJAMIN, our stellar sports photographer, is a Welshman and he played considerable soccer before coming to the United States. He knows the game thoroughly, and he was enamoured of the style of play of the Rangers as he snapped their pictures during yesterday's workout. The Rangers did not open up, but Benny, as we call him, detected many signs of class in their maneuvering.

One trick that did not escape Benny's eye was the fact that the champions do a lot of dribbling and passing the ball on the ground and do not keep it in the air as much as the American teams do. This makes it tough for the opposition to follow the ball and well nigh impossible for it gain possession and apparently accounts in a large measure for the phenomenal success of the outfit, of which we shall get an eyeful tomorrow in its battle with an all-star local team.

FIFTH GIRLS COP MEET

Fifth Avenue High School captured the senior girls' city high school track and field championship, held under the auspices of the Department of Hygiene at the University of Pittsburgh stadium in conjunction with the boys' title meet yesterday. It barely nosed out Westinghouse High, getting 21 points to the Silver Lakers' 20. Oliver was third with 18, South Hills fourth with 12 and Peabody fifth with 11.

Westinghouse High captured the junior championship with 26 points, Oliver was second with 16, Gladstone next with 11, Carrick fourth with 10 and Knoxville fifth with 9.

Schenley captured the intermediate title, getting 14 points to Peabody's 12 and Fifth Avenue's 5.

GOWANDA DOUBLE VICTOR

H. F. BOVARD'S home-raised thoroughbreds distinguished themselves yesterday afternoon, the first day of Allegheny Country Club's annual horse show at Sewickley. Gowanda, 2-year-old chestnut gelding, carrying off two blue ribbons in the breeding classes against a field of the finest young hunters ever shown in Western Pennsylvania.

H. F. Bovard.

The biggest horse show event of the year got under way in an auspicious manner despite threatening clouds and the soggy underfooting which made a day in the open somewhat uncomfortable. Society was a little slow responding to the call of the stable and ring and the afternoon's program was well underway before the crowd reached such proportions that the first day could be called a success.

Some of the finest specimens of horseflesh in the country, beautiful imported thoroughbreds from all parts of the United States and Canada, were exhibited in the 13 classes scheduled for the opening day. Most of the horses were exhibited in hand, although one or two saddle classes and novice hunting events added a bit of a thrill for those who like to see action in the ring. There were only two hunter classes, one of these for novices. Fortunately there were no spills.

Bovard's Gowanda was the outstanding feature of the day. Taking the blue ribbon in the 2-year-old class for young hunters, the beautiful chestnut was so well received that Mr. Bovard decided to make him a post entry in the 3-year-old class and was rewarded with another blue ribbon.

In the 3-year-old class, Gowanda competed against Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Robinson's Tympanum and Reformed, prize horses from Indiana, Pa.; Avonvale, a Rolling Rock farm entry and other fine colts, some of them of finest imported stock.

Several other of the Bovard entries carried off honors in the other classes as well and Rolling Rock fared well during the afternoon. R. K. Mellon rode in one of the hunter events and led several other of the Rolling Rock entries in some of the other classes.

the reckoning it is only fair to stop to pay respects to the same spread-eagle shortstop who saved the game in the heated ninth with a great catch, with three on the sacks, two out, Bell at bat and one run needed to send the fans home with the flush of victory.

The Buccos fought like Trojans with two out in the ninth to overcome a two-run lead. Thanks to Adams, P. Waner Wright and Barnhart the two runs were made, the second tally bringing about the passing of Kent Greenfield.

Pete Scott, with two homers and a double was the Delehanty of the Pirate offensive. Peterkin hit his second homer in the twelfth to clinch the game.

Carmen Hill fought it out with Greenfield for eight rounds. Up went Adams to bat for Hill and Sparky went to second for the remainder of the game as Brickell batted for Bartell.

The opening game was a fight right from the first round to the twelfth, five homers being among the runs. Others who cashed in on the short fence for round-trippers besides Scott being Barnhart, Hornsby and Taylor.

Manager Bush announced this morning that Ray Kremer would pitch for the Pirates this afternoon. Manager Hornsby of the opposition is expected to use Southpaw Eddie Brandt.

Business Leaders Taking To Air: Probable Effect.

By B. C. FORBES

A TRI-MOTOR airship this week winged its way across the continent for use by a leading California oil company. J. Talbot, president of the Richfield Oil Company, was among the nine passengers.

This is more significant, in my opinion, of the progress being made by flying than are the various across-ocean flights.

WHY, one wonders, are oil executives becoming the pioneer users of airships for strictly business purposes? Standard Oil of Indiana some time ago purchased a plane for executive use.

Perhaps one reason is that gigantic oil companies usually have properties located in different parts of the country. By using planes executives can cover vast territory quickly.

BUT many of our largest enterprises today have branches covering either the whole or a large part of the continent. Since it is becoming more and more recognized that the executive who ties himself to his desk cannot prove as effective as the executive who constantly goes out on the firing line and sees things with his own eyes, is it not probable that there will set in a rapidly-broadening demand for airships from such corporations? "Time is money." Now that we have million-dollar-a-year executives, it is reasonable to suppose that the very fastest means of transportation will be freely availed of as it becomes demonstrated that the danger incurred is not great.

WE are thrilled, of course, by the death-defying flights made over wide oceans, over the North Pole and around the world.

But such exploits are less calculated to encourage you and me to take to the air than if we knew that scores of the brainiest business executives in the country had adopted flying as their normal means of making business journeys. We associate a Lindbergh with youth and the daring characteristic of youth, but we look upon executives of great corporations as hard-headed, calculating men who have reached an age that doesn't court danger.

MY own opinion has been that it would take years before the demand for airships would prove sufficient to permit of anything approaching mass production. While I still feel convinced that the sensational rise in certain air stocks is ridiculously premature, should this, that and the next brainy business leader acquire planes and use them freely in their daily duties, I would feel compelled to revise my estimate of the time it will take to bring on the large-scale manufacturing of airships.

We look upon air mail pilots and others of that class as professional fliers, as bold spirits unafraid to earn a livelihood in the face of what strikes us as no little danger. But a very different impression is made upon the mind when men possessing sufficient judgment to raise them to very high position take to the air as part of their every-day activities. Somehow, we feel that if such men are perfectly willing to fly, then there is no overpowering reason why the rest of us should timidly shrink from it.

HENRY FORD once took me to his air field. Young Brooks, his daredevil pilot, did hair-raising stunts in a plane of amazingly small size. I shuddered. Incidentally, Brooks later lost his life in just such a plane.

But when a giant tri-motor Ford ship came sailing along, I felt for the first time in my life, that it would be perfectly safe to fly. And, I have felt that way ever since, my reasoning being that if anything happened to one motor or even two motors, it still would be possible to make a safe landing.

THAT the aircraft industry will develop far more rapidly from now on can be accepted as certain.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 8.—Further rains Northwest more than offset the influence of higher cables today, and caused wheat prices early to average lower. With a Government crop report, however, due after the close, every weakening tendency to depress, and selling was restricted. Opening at ⅝c decline to ¼c advance, wheat later underwent a sag all around. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise easier, with corn starting unchanged to ⅛c off, and subsequently showing decided general downturns.

At noon wheat was ⅛ to ⅜c net lower and corn ⅛ to 2¼c off.

Houses with Northwestern connections led the selling much of the time in the wheat market today. Simultaneously bears made much of reports of a better moisture supply for spring wheat. Special notice was taken of a dispatch from Bottineau, N. D., saying water was standing in low places, and that the drought in that section had been broken.

On the other hand, advices were current that bids at the Gulf of Mexico were about ⅛c higher than wheat futures. Oklahoma and that at the present level of prices the situation Southwest might change decidedly as to the movement of new wheat. Some attention was also given to announcement of a big falling-off in Australia shipments and of European reports of unfavorable weather and of damage to the potato crop.

The following grain quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by J. S. Masten & Co.:

LOAN SITUATION SENDS STOCKS DOWNWARD

NEW YORK, June 8.—(AP.)—Speculative uneasiness over monetary conditions, which was intensified by the increase of nearly $100,000,000 in brokers' loans last week, was reflected in a sharp downward readjustment of prices in today's stock market. Extreme losses in the active issues ranged from 2 to nearly 10 points, although some recoveries took place during the afternoon.

In view of the sharp decrease in prices last week, the huge expansion of loans came as a surprise and was generally attributed to the heavy financing of new securities offerings. Call money was in such plentiful supply that the renewal rate was fixed at 5½ per cent, as against 6 yesterday and 6½ the day before.

There was little in the day's trade news to influence the price movement. The Sinclair company announced an advance of ½ cent a gallon in the tank wagon price of gasoline. The National Lumber Association reported that the seasonal curtailment of operations and sales was beginning to make itself felt. Chain store sales continue in excess of the corresponding period last year.

Selling pressure was most effective against the high priced specialties, Case Threshing broke 9½ points, Wright Aeronautical 8, Archer Daniels Midland, 7¼, and International Harvester, 7. Declines of 4 points or more were recorded by more than a score issues, including A. M. Byers, Delaware and Hudson, Atlantic Refining, Frank G. Shattuck, Packard Motors, Adams Express and Midland Steel Products preferred.

To the Holders of Preference Stock, Common Stock Class A and Common Stock Class B, of Dodge Brothers, Inc.:

Representatives of your Company and of Chrysler Corporation have developed a plan for combining the business of the two companies under Chrysler management. Under this plan (more fully described in the above mentioned "Plan and Agreement," to which you are referred) it is contemplated that stockholders of Dodge Brothers, Inc. will receive Common Stock of Chrysler Corporation on the following basis:

One share of Common Stock of Chrysler Corporation for each share of Preference Stock of Dodge Brothers, Inc.;
One share of Common Stock of Chrysler Corporation for each five shares of Common Stock Class A of Dodge Brothers, Inc.;
One share of Common Stock of Chrysler Corporation for each ten shares of Common Stock Class B of Dodge Brothers, Inc.;

and that the assets and business of Dodge Brothers, Inc. will be transferred to Chrysler Corporation which will then assume all the liabilities and obligations of Dodge Brothers, Inc., including its 6% Gold Debentures. Delivery of Chrysler Corporation stock will be made as soon as practicable after transfer of the Dodge Brothers assets.

Conditions Precedent to Consummation: The consummation of the plan is dependent upon the extent to which it is accepted by holders of the several classes of stock of Dodge Brothers, Inc. Although assurances have been received that substantially all of the Common Stock Class B (which under the Dodge Company charter has sole voting rights) will be deposited under the plan immediately, no attempt to consummate the plan will be made unless substantial majorities of both the Preference Stock and the Common Stock Class A are also deposited under the plan.

Committee for Deposit: The Board of Directors of your Company by unanimous resolution has recommended that the stockholders of the Company of all classes deposit their stock under the plan. At the request of the Board, Messrs. Edward G. Wilmer (President, Dodge Brothers, Inc.), George W. Davison (President, Central Union Trust Company of New York) and Robert P. Lamont (President, American Steel Foundries) will serve as a Committee to receive deposits of stock under the plan and have caused to be prepared the above mentioned "Plan and Agreement" under which such deposits may be made.

Trend of the Motor Business: Under the plan the enlarged Chrysler Corporation will be a motor enterprise of exceptional strength and promise, the Dodge facilities and business supplementing those of Chrysler to the great advantage of both. The trend of the motor business is undoubtedly in the direction of such unification as will make available the maximum advantages of mass production and distribution. The location of the principal plants of both companies in Detroit should make for convenient and effective unified management. Both of these plants are in excellent physical condition, are equipped with the most modern and efficient production facilities, and should be able to manufacture at costs competitive with any in the industry.

Chrysler and Dodge lines to continue: Increased and concentrated purchasing power, integrated arrangement of manufacturing programs and numerous other possibilities inherent in a unified direction of the two enterprises should result in material economy of operation. The present Chrysler and Dodge lines of product, both passenger cars and trucks, will continue in manufacture and these products will be distributed through the two existing dealer organizations, thus insuring the continuance of these extremely valuable organizations whose financial strength, loyalty and enthusiasm are assets of great value.

Combined Balance Sheet: The combined balance sheet of the two companies as of April 30, 1928, adjusted to give effect to the consummation of the plan, shows current assets of approximately $112,000,000, of which cash and marketable securities alone aggregate more than $44,000,000 as compared with current liabilities of approximately $36,000,000. Total funded debt amounted to $61,168,000.

Chrysler Corporation has called all of its outstanding Preferred Stock for redemption and in order to provide the necessary funds Chrysler Corporation, before the consummation of the plan and the delivery of shares of its stock to stockholders of Dodge Brothers, Inc., will offer rights to the holders of Chrysler Common Stock to purchase approximately 453,000 additional shares of Common Stock at $57.50 per share. On issuance of this additional stock and stock to the full amount required to provide for all Dodge stock on the basis mentioned in the plan, Chrysler Corporation will have only one class of stock outstanding, viz., 4,423,484 shares of Common Stock. The per share earnings given below are calculated on this basis.

With such a balance sheet condition and capital structure the combined enterprise will be in position to operate most profitably and to take advantage of attractive opportunities for the further development of the business.

Earnings: Following are the earnings which would have been available for Common Stock from January 1, 1925, to April 30, 1928, after deducting from each company's earnings interest charges on its present funded debt, and adjusting federal income taxes to present rates and Dodge earnings to include full ownership of Graham Brothers for the entire period:

	Years Ended Dec. 31 1925	1926	1927	4 Months Ended April 30, 1928
Chrysler	$17,235,306	$15,688,704	$19,841,012	$ 8,019,506
Dodge	25,854,704	23,091,653	9,993,789	2,843,468
Combined Earnings	$43,090,010	$38,780,357	$29,834,801	$10,862,974
Earned per share (on 4,423,484 shs.)	$9.74	$8.77	$6.74	$2.46 (At the annual rate of $7.38 per share)

The extensive readjustment in the Dodge product has drawn heavily upon working capital and adversely affected earnings for the past two years with a resultant menace to the continued payment of dividends on the company's Preference Stock, there remaining a balance of $802,098 for the four months ended April 30, 1928, after providing for payment of interest charges and dividends on the Preference Stock aggregating $3,191,353 for the period.

Assuming a return of Dodge earnings, with the benefit of the unified management, to the amount realized in 1926, the last full year of Dodge operations before the readjustment program was inaugurated, the addition of this amount to Chrysler earnings at the annual rate shown by four months' operations ended April 30, 1928, would amount to approximately $47,150,000, equivalent to $10.66 per share.

Chrysler Common Stock: General Motors and Packard common stocks are currently selling at approximately 13 times the annual earnings per share, computing their annual earnings on the basis of the most recently reported quarterly earnings. Capitalizing the above assumed earnings of $10.66 per share at the existing market ratio between earnings and market prices of General Motors and Packard common stocks would result in a market value of $138.50 for Chrysler Common Stock.

Total annual dividend requirements after the issuance of the proposed additional Chrysler stock will be $13,270,452 at the annual dividend rate of $3 per share now being paid on Chrysler Common Stock. Notwithstanding the small Dodge contribution to combined current earnings, aggregate earnings in 1927 of $29,834,801 were more than twice the total present dividend requirements after issuance of proposed additional stock. The excess of current earnings above such present dividend requirements together with the prospect of increased earnings indicate attractive future possibilities for Chrysler Common Stock after consummation of the plan.

Chrysler Growth: The desirability of Dodge becoming allied with Chrysler may be realized from a statement of Chrysler accomplishment. Prior to 1920 Mr. Walter P. Chrysler had been successively President of Buick Motor Company, Executive Vice-President of General Motors Corporation and Executive Vice-President of Willys Overland Company. In that year he became Chairman of the Maxwell-Chalmers Managing and Reorganization Committee, and in 1921 chief executive of the new Maxwell Motor Corporation. Since that date he has been continuously chief executive of that corporation and of its successor, Chrysler Corporation, to which in 1925 Maxwell Motor Corporation transferred its assets. In 1922 the business showed a net profit for the first time since 1919. The growth of earnings (after taxes at then current rates) available for stock is shown in the following table:

1922	$ 831,662	1925	$17,126,136
1923	2,677,852	1926	15,448,587
1924	4,115,540	1927	19,484,880

The total present market value of Chrysler Corporation stocks is approximately $240,000,000.

Realization of the opportunities and advantages inherent in unified conduct of the business, with the addition of the capable direction which has characterized the management of Chrysler Corporation, should prove of great advantage both to the public which the two companies serve and to the stockholders.

In behalf of the Board of Directors, and as President of your Company, I recommend the prompt deposit of your stock with the Committee.

As provided in the Agreement, Depositors will receive dividends paid on the deposited stock pending the consummation of the plan.

Depositors will not be called upon to pay any compensation or expenses of the Committee or any other expenses, the Dodge Company having agreed to pay the same.

Mr. A. C. Horn, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Company, has summarized his letter to the Bankers as follows:

HISTORY OF BUSINESS: This business was established in 1897 as a partnership, and organized as a corporation in 1907. The Company will have a net worth of $1,800,000, of which amount about $1,450,000 represents reinvestment of earnings. In addition, the Company has paid dividends on its previous preferred stock issues without interruption, and has also paid dividends in cash and preferred stock on its common stock.

The Company manufactures varnishes, technical coatings, waterproofing materials, paints and various materials to decorate, conserve and protect surfaces of all kinds. The manufacturing facilities of the Company comprise twenty-three structures of varying sizes and heights, located in Long Island City on an area greater than a square block of valuable real estate which is only twenty minutes from Times Square and a few blocks from the Queensboro Bridge.

The Company owns at least 50% of the shares entitled to vote in several subsidiary and affiliated companies.

The products of the A. C. Horn Company for structural use are on sale in every large city of the United States either through its own branch offices or sold through well known building material dealers.

EARNINGS: Of the thirty-one years of its existence, the business has earned a profit in practically every one and the sales volume has exceeded the previous year in each case as the Company's products gained a wider market due to merit and consistent publicity through trade journals and mail.

For the year ending 1927, net earnings after taxes were equivalent to over 3¼ times the First Preferred dividend requirements, and after deducting the amount required for dividends on the First Preferred Stock and Second Preferred Stock to be presently outstanding, but before deducting the sinking fund requirements for the First Preferred Stock, were equivalent to $1.29 on the Common Stock to be presently outstanding.

Net income before Federal Taxes for the first four months of 1928 was $123,244.70, or at the rate of $369,734.10 per annum, although earnings for this period are usually smaller than for the latter part of the year. On this basis, earnings after Federal Taxes would be equivalent to about 4½ times First Preferred dividend requirements and after making the above mentioned deductions, would be at the rate of over $2.16 per share on the Common Stock to be presently outstanding. Sales have increased 18% over the first four months of 1927.

For a description of the First Preferred and Common Stock and for further details concerning the Company, reference is made to a circular, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned upon request.

We offer the above shares, if, as and when issued and received by us, subject to allotment and prior sale. All legal proceedings are subject to the approval of Messrs. Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, counsel for the Bankers, and Messrs. A. W. and E. J. Feinberg, counsel for the Company. It is anticipated that either interim receipts for Units or temporary certificates for First Preferred and Common Stocks will be delivered on or before June 30, 1928, but no certificates for fractional shares will be delivered.

Price $55 and Accrued Dividend per Unit { One Share of First Preferred Stock / ½ Share Common Stock }

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Dodge-Chrysler consolidation is still the principal topic of discussion in financial circles, although a week has elapsed since the original announcement of the merger was made. Full details of the transaction at first were not fully known, but now that all angles have been made public, enormous advantages for the stockholders of both companies are apparent.

Chrysler common stockholders have the immediate benefit of rights to purchase additional stock at $57.50 a share. Yesterday the stock closed at 79⅝. Holders of each six shares will be given rights to subscribe for one share of new stock. The proceeds of the sale will be used to retire the Chrysler preferred, leaving the new company with only one class of stock.

FROM a long range viewpoint Chrysler will secure the Dodge plants, which are modern and excellently equipped. Dodge's 6,000 dealers will broaden the sales outlet of the new company. The identity of the Dodge car will be continued. The place of the new organization in the low priced field will be expanded by the production of the new De Soto, which Chrysler has been preparing for some time.

AT FIRST glance the holders of Dodge preference stock appear to have little to gain in exchanging shares paying $7 a year in dividends on an even basis for shares of Chrysler, which are paying $3 a year, but a closer analysis shows the advantages. Chrysler common was selling for a much higher price than Dodge preference before the consolidation became known. The announcement resulted in the advance of the price of Dodge to an extent which considerably narrowed this gap. The discrepancy still existing between the prices of the stocks is accounted for by the value of the Chrysler rights.

THE general opinion in financial circles is that Chrysler common with its prospects for future enhancement in value and in dividend return is a better speculation than Dodge preference with its dubious possibilities over the next few months and its limited participation in any improvement in Dodge earnings in future years. The dividend return on the preference stock is permanently limited to the $7 dividend rate. Chrysler common is limited only by the genius of Chrysler management. The phenomenal development of this comparative newcomer to the motor field speaks for itself.

THE fact that Chrysler is buying Dodge assets and making the principal payment in common stock is another favorable factor from the standpoint of management. The great physical assets and the good will assets of Dodge are being obtained without burdening Chrysler with heavy fixed charges for interest or preferred dividends. Dodge is being bought for about $160,000,000. Dodge notes and debentures constitute $60,000,000 of this. The cost for the remaining $100,000,000 of the investment will depend on the future earnings of the company.

THE banking interests which own the 500,000 shares of class B common stock of Dodge in which sole voting power rests are making a substantial sacrifice to compensate for the discrepancy which existed between the market prices of Dodge preference and Chrysler common. The class A common, which is in the hands of the general public and which has no voting power, is exchangeable for one share of Chrysler common for each five shares held. The class B voting common, which actually has greater value, since control of the company rests with it, is exchangeable for one share of Chrysler for each 10 shares held.

TURNING from Dodge and Chrysler to a local organization, the earnings of the Arkansas Natural Gas Corporation are exceeding those of 1927 and the new company is working out to the entire satisfaction of the management.

An initial dividend of 1½ per cent was declared yesterday on the preferred stock of the new organization, which took over the business of the old Arkansas Natural Gas Company. The dividend is payable July 2 to stockholders of record June 22. Unless the holders of the old stock deposit their certificates for exchange into stock of the new corporation by June 22 they will lose this dividend.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 8.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 9 to 15 points under selling influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables and favorable early weather reports.

October sold off to 20.55c, or about 14 points below yesterday's closing quotations, but the decline brought in considerable buying and prices steadied up several points before the end of the first hour. There appeared to be some uncertainty as to whether conditions over the week end, which, with rather unfavorable private crop advices from the Southwest, probably promoted some of the early buying.

Private cables said trade calling had been supplied by liquidation and foreign selling in Liverpool and reported a moderate cotton cloth business with the continent and South America.

The rally from the opening decline carried the market up to 20.73c for October, or 4 points net higher. The demand tapered off at these figures and prices sagged. October sold off to 20.65c, but the dips seemed to bring in further covering on the outlook for showery weather. The market was quiet, but fairly steady around midday, with prices net unchanged to 3 points higher.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The raw sugar market was quiet today with prices unchanged at 4.30c for Cuban duty paid.

The raw sugar futures market opened 1 to 2 points lower under liquidation and selling by producing interests, prompted by the weakness abroad and the continued inactivity in the spot market. Shorts covered on the decline, but the demand was soon supplied. Prices at mid-day showed little change from initial figures, ruling 1 to 2 points below the previous close. Trading was dull, and operators appeared to be awaiting developments in connection with the disposal of the 300,000 tons recently segregated from the original allotment of the United States. Official announcement is expected today.

The refined market was unchanged at 6.05 to 6.10 for fine granulated.

THE SUN TELEGRAPH

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER

Herbert Hoover Is By Far the Best and Most Popular Candidate That the Republican Party Can Nominate

ANY one who does not know that President Coolidge will refuse a renomination for President, even if it is offered him definitely at Kansas City, does not know the characteristic truth and honesty of the man, and does not comprehend the greatness of his patriotic purpose in declining.

There are cheap politicians perhaps who cannot realize that the President is incapable of such a petty political trick as stating that he would not accept the nomination and then accepting it with a show of reluctance.

BUT the people as a whole understand President Coolidge better and realize that when he refused what might have been considered as a third term, he did so for the same patriotic reasons that animated Washington and Jefferson and Madison and Monroe, and all the Fathers of the Republic, and all the great Presidents down to this day who have made similar decisions.

With all the great things that President Coolidge has done in his administration, there is no one thing that will give him a higher place in history than this high-minded and unselfish determination.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE being, therefore, definitely out of the race for the Republican nomination, and Secretary Mellon having refused to allow his name to be used, the Hearst newspapers find the one man most capable of carrying on the principles and policies of the Coolidge administration to be Secretary Herbert C. Hoover.

The best evidence of this truth is the fact that Secretary Mellon, and indeed as far as it is legitimate in his high position, President Coolidge are supporting the candidacy of Secretary Hoover.

SECRETARY HOOVER is perhaps more conservative a candidate than the Hearst papers would ordinarily support for the Republican nomination; but the present situation demands conservatism, and Secretary Hoover's conservatism is of the constructive and not the reactionary type.

There is, therefore, probably no man in the whole Republican party who would be as useful a President to the party and as valuable a President to the nation during the next four years as Secretary Hoover.

MOREOVER, he is unquestionably the strongest candidate from a mere political point of view that the Republican party could possibly nominate.

Furthermore, his strength lies to a considerable degree in the cities, where the Democratic party is usually strong, on account of the large elements of foreign descent residents there.

But Secretary Hoover is popular with these elements, and he will largely transfer their loyalty from the Democratic party to the Republican party.

ALMOST any Republican candidate can carry the Republican country districts, but no one except Hoover can display the same formidable strength in the cities, which are usually the Democratic strongholds.

The Republican party will not only strengthen itself in this election by nominating Secretary Hoover for President, but it will strengthen itself for many elections to come by aligning these elements of foreign descent with the party, in support of a candidate whom they all admire and trust.

HAPPILY it was in serving his own country, the United States of America, that Secretary Hoover has made staunch friends of the citizens of foreign descent.

His constructive work abroad and his constructive work at home endear him to the hearts of American citizens of all kinds and classes.

And the appeal which this true statesman makes to his fellow citizens' fealty is not merely an appeal to the heart but also an appeal to the mind.

SECRETARY HOOVER is in no sense a demagogue. He makes no claptrap appeal to public passion or prejudice. He has no tricks of expression or of attire to get himself into the newspapers.

He depends on his public performances, on his acts, on his achievements, on his constructive program, on his belief that his fellow citizens have the intelligence and understanding that he has, and will appreciate what he has done and what he plans to do in their service.

The fact that Secretary Hoover is to a degree a retiring man will not hurt him in his campaign, because this quality is due to an innate modesty; and the people like modesty in a public official and dislike and distrust a swelled head—especially when it is an empty one.

ON the whole, Secretary Hoover is by far the best candidate and the most popular candidate that the Republican party can name.

And the Republican party cannot afford, in the light of recent disclosures, to reject a conspicuously honest, able and popular candidate, and nominate another Harding just to please the politicians.

It is the people who must be pleased in this campaign, and the people want Herbert Clark Hoover.

Women Show Good Sense In Asking About Loan

Our women are being marshalled, as well as the men, in behalf of the campaign for the big improvement loan, to be decided by the voters at a special election Tuesday, July 26. More than 1,000 of our mothers, wives, sisters, daughters will be invited to attend a bond issue tea in the William Penn Hotel next Tuesday afternoon. Preliminary plans developed from a meeting attended by prominent women representing women's clubs.

The importance of an educational campaign in behalf of the proposed $43,680,000 improvement loan was presented, and the need for the projects was stressed. A speaker also pointed out that the tax increase would be small, at no time reaching more than one and a half mills.

And it was not all cut and dried. Some of the women presented objections to certain details of the bond program. These were listed, and it was promised that answers would be read at the women's big meeting next week. That is as it should be. Every person who has the home interest paramount—and men should have it as well as women—will take the trouble to be thoroughly versed on the bond issue before going to the polls.

There is no fear that necessary improvements will suffer from searching investigation. The need of many of them has been evident for years, and changing conditions make the need constantly more urgent.

Pupil Enrollment Shows School More Attractive

The public school enrollment of 110,000 pupils, largest in history, the increase in 15 years being 35,000, is largely due to power of the schools to hold their pupils after reaching the age at which compulsory education ceases, according to Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent. He attributes this power to more diversified studies, better schools and greater attractiveness of school activities.

We are proud of our schools, and it is satisfying to be informed that we are receiving such excellent results from them. The standard of education advances, and a greater number constantly takes advantage of the greater opportunity. When grandfather was a boy he got a few months' schooling in the winter, if he was the average boy. When his son went to school, he got a longer term, but the graded studies probably were all he pursued. The high school classes, once small, now are large. They will continue to become larger and the schools more specialized.

The coming generation will see high school graduates as numerous as those who now end their school days with the completion of their grades. We are improving in culture, but do not realize how much until some educator like Dr. Davidson points it out to us in actual figures.

All Cleaned Up and Visitors Coming

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Captive Joys

WHEN dark days come
And bleak winds blow,
Devoid of song and sun,
The sullen hours
To slowly flow
Into oblivion.

Then those who find
No light within
Must sight at gloom without;
But, ah! how slight
A gleam may win
And put dark hosts to rout!

I keep always
This shining thought
And guard it like a light;
Each captive joy
In past hours caught,
Will make some dark day bright!

A Book for Commencement

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

If you are thinking of giving a commencement present to any young person in whose career you may be interested, how about a book?

A good book, well selected, and preferably a book that you have read yourself, is the best of all gifts.

The owning of books is in itself a sort of distinction.

People may be divided, some one has said, into two classes: those who read books with covers on them and those who read magazines and newspapers.

The world is full of classic masterpieces which have been tested by time and which it would do any one good to become acquainted with.

To give a young person such a book is distinctly to enrich his life. It is complimentary, in a way, for it implies that you think he is capable of understanding and appreciating it, that you feed his intellect somewhat more than his amusement. A gift of jewelry is all right, of course, or of clothing or some other adornment, but these appeal only to a personal desire for display.

The most beautiful thing in the world is a beautiful idea. Thoughts are things and they outlast all material possessions.

To put a young person in the possession of a compendium of serious and worth-while thoughts is to bestow upon him a lasting benefit.

In almost any other kind of possession there may be embarrassment and excess, but in the bestowal of good books, useful books, there is no excess.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY.

On the Job

YOU are losing interest in your work.

You call it your daily grind.

And, thinking as you do, you are courting failure.

If you can't put fresh vim into your work every day, you would better step down and out of your present job.

But you say that the present time is not a good time to look for a job; and it isn't good for your employer to have such a man around, is what he would say, if he knew your attitude.

Do you realize how serious it might be if you were discharged?"

The next logical thought should be to make yourself more valuable to the man who pays you wages.

What if you should lose your job?

You need your job, so you better tackle it tomorrow morning with vim.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, June 8.—Thoughts while strolling: Anne Nichols has bobbed her hair. Nate Collier, the artist. The singing bootblack in West Forty-fifth street. An oil can with a potato impaling its spout. Another oil can with a movie mustache. Edna Ferber, an Appleton, Wis., girl, who made good in the city.

Few customers in the Holland Tunnel sight-seeing buses. Clare Briggs getting stout. The Texas hotel clerk who took a fancy name and crashed New York society. Peter Arno, the artist, and his wife, Lois Long. The taxis with blurred back windows for neckers.

The certain way to distinguish out-of-towners—they laugh out loud. New Yorkers struggle to smile. A coal dealer named Burns, an ice cream dealer named Melts and a tailor named Raggy. Ladies who seem to own the world, hunting for ready dinner buyers. Jim Quirk's salmon-colored roadster.

The ace of the high comediennes—Ina Claire. Young men in striped blazers who give a collegiate glamor to soda jerking. The hotel bathing pool craze hurts the tea rooms. The maids in sleeveless dresses and hatless—coy and Lillian Gish-ish. Geno Markey. Chicago's Chesterfield, with a back-dip Panama.

What's become of corduroy pants? The Russian cafe where they sing nursery rhymes. Pale young men who spend their lives making combination shots. The fake jewelry auctions carry on. Robert Emmett MacAlarney. The nameless restaurant on West 42d street, near Broadway.

A window of live fish—one suggests Bud de Sylva and another Katherine Cornell. A shirt hospital. The slappity-bang of the elevated. Shadowy eyes and knowing winks. A sign painter can always attract an audience. Frederick Burr Opper, the cartoonist, who created "Happy Hooligan."

See the Lord's prayer on the head of a pin. The glum looking shills for curb hawkers. Galloping commuters. "Here y'are! What pape?" A traffic cop climbs down his tower ladder. Fifth avenue window shoppers. And the happy home-going rush of shop girls.

It is said a good street faker with a salable gim-crack can make $10 a day profits along West 42d street. A spot near the library wall and a block in Nassau street are the most prolific in profits for "pitches." Fifth Avenue or Broadway are regarded as poor locations. A street hawker usually pays his shill $3 a day to start off sales and keep an eye peeled for a copper.

A chain of restaurants discovered patrons enjoyed helping themselves from generously filled dishes waitresses brought to the tables. And at the same time came the discovery that this made a large cut in expenses for kitchen helpers and those who could help themselves to as much as they pleased rarely took as much as would be served by helpers.

I am informed there are only two straight vaudeville theaters left in America—that is only two where vaudeville is the sole attraction. The rest are a combination of movies and vaudeville. My enthusiasm for vaudeville collapsed not because of quality or spice, but due solely to the fact I have rarely encountered anything but snippy box office men in vaudeville houses. There may be those who do not regard it as a high favor to sell you a seat, but I never ran across them.

About the only affable box office man I ever met was Leonard Bergman. He is no longer a box office man, however. He is general manager for A. L. Erlanger, one of the biggest men in the business.

* * *

I have always had to whistle through my teeth, wave a handkerchief or yell "Yoo hoo" to get the attention of a box office man. He seems always to be talking to some person hidden off side. When he finally condescends to give me a what-is-it-worm look he reaches languidly toward the tickets and appears frightfully annoyed when I suggest I would like to know where the seats are for which I am paying my money. There seems to be something about me they don't like—perhaps it's my ears.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

SEVERAL "love balm" suits have been mentioned in the newspapers recently.

Webster says that "balm is an ointment that heals pain."

Then women who file suits are making legal records of the fact that their hearts will quit aching when their palms are oiled.

Nobody ever found anything "fragrant" in these suits, so the answer must be that money is fragrant to some people. Don't blame me, blame Mr. Webster.

Then there is more confusion about this word money. Webster says that it is a medium of exchange. Will the ladies who agree to hold their peace for a certain sum of money, admit that they are exchanging their husbands for the money?

And where does "love" come in?

Mr. Webster says "love is the desire to promote the welfare of another."

Yet love balm suits always wreck the works.

Kindly page the puzzle editor!

The Rev. Thomas Wheply, speaking of Mrs. Florence Knapp, says that he can't believe that the consequences of her conduct were clear to Mrs. Knapp as they would have been to a man "taught by experience to distinguish sharply between right and wrong in business conduct."

Does he mean that in business, the difference between right and wrong should be determined by the consequences?

It so often is!
